

Italy Hints Hitler Not Quite Set to Blitzkrieg Britain

Fascist Says Gradual Tactics Will be Used; Troops Massing

Rome—(AP)—Virgilio Gayda, fascist editor who frequently expresses views of the fascist government, warned his countrymen today not to expect an immediate attempt to invade England.

Gayda, writing in Il Giornale D'Italia, explained that, because of different conditions, "the spectacular lightning campaign" such as Germany and later Italy waged against France was not feasible against Britain.

Instead, Gayda said, more gradual tactics, designed to wear England down and weaken her powers of resistance, were required.

This preparatory stage, with the object of isolating Britain, is in progress, the editor said.

It is based principally, he declared, on constant air attacks and efforts to blockade England through submarine action.

Parallel with direct attacks on the British Isles, Italy will be contributing in the weakening of Britain's strength by activities in the Mediterranean, Gayda said.

He predicted that actual invasion of Britain probably would be attempted later when the preliminary phase was accomplished thoroughly.

Less than three weeks ago Gayda asserted that preparations for a vast sea assault on Britain would be completed in a few days.

He wrote July 15 that Britain would have to choose between the "renovating, restorative forces of Europe or extremely grim violent war" in which her overthrow "will be measured not by years or weeks of which Churchill spoke, but by days or hours."

Bern, Switzerland—(AP)—Italian troops and planes are standing ready in North sea and English channel bases to aid German legions in the long-promised frontal attack against England, it was disclosed today.

Italians in Switzerland confirmed diplomatic reports that Adolf Hitler had granted a specific request from Benito Mussolini that his fascist troops be permitted to share in the attempt to invade Britain.

The fuhrer agreed, the reports said, after a conference with his military staff, although he limited Italian army participation to "token" land and parachute troops.

In the matter of planes, however, Hitler asked for many squadrons, and these have been flown to bases in the German-occupied sections of France along the bay of Biscay and in Brittany, loaded with Italian parachute troops trained by the Germans.

Other land units, composed of troops who have seen service in Spain and drawn from Italian garrisons, have been sent through the Brenner pass to sea channel ports farther west.

Discount Reports

On sources, like the German, say, of the long-planned big attack against England was "impossible." Nevertheless, many observers believed the axis powers might only be turning on a familiar terror machine full of gas, and that the attempted invasion, if it comes, still may be several weeks away.

Those who believed the reports that the apparent last-minute preparations were the real thing pointed to improving weather all over western Europe, presaging ideal August conditions for an air offensive.

There were indications that Spain might join in the "all out" offensive. German and Italian travelers from Spain said Generalissimo Francisco Franco's government appeared to be preparing to try to capture Gibraltar, famed fortress rock guarding the western entrance to the Mediterranean, long coveted by Spain. Spain and Britain are not yet at war, however.

Italy was reported to have completed the task of moving many of her "pocket" submarines by rail through the Brenner pass into Germany. These 30-foot craft were shipped in sections on flat cars, and presumably would be important as a protecting arm in any German onslaught against Britain.

Heat Deaths at 858 in Country

City Enjoys Coolest Day Since Hot Spell Started; Rain Is Due

Showers brought a welcome respite from intense heat in scattered sections of the nation today but apparently provided only a temporary check on torrid temperatures.

Forecasters said there was no sign of general relief but predicted more rain for the plains states, Great Lakes region and upper Mississippi valley, the Associated Press reported.

Temperatures remained far above normal for much of the continent east of the Rockies. Many states reported readings in the nineties yesterday and some sweltered on 100-plus temperatures.

The mercury touched 107 degrees at Waynoka, Okla., yesterday. Indianapolis was blistered by 102.9 degree heat. It was the hottest July 30 there in 27 years. A heavy rain sent the temperature down to 75 late last night.

Temperatures of 100 or more were plentiful in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. Topeka, Kas., sizzled in 105-degree heat.

Deaths attributed directly or indirectly to the heat numbered 858.

Newspaper in Spain Pleads For U. S. Aid

Observers Think Cry For Help Is Prompted By Gasoline Shortage

Madrid—(AP)—A call for aid from the United States in returning Spain to normalcy after her wasting civil war was sounded by the Falangist newspaper, Arriba today, as if in answer to rumors abroad that Spain is preparing to assume an attitude of embroilment in the European war.

Observers said it was a fair guess that the newspaper editorial, coming as it did after a fortnight of sharp criticism of United States "dollar diplomacy" in Latin America, was inspired by Spain's gasoline shortage.

The newspaper said, "we cannot understand how great peoples, rich and free of their own conflicts, can refuse to send, or can delay sending, to Spain the elements which naturally are necessary to rebuild completely and normally, after a long and wasting civil war which has been longer precisely for the reasons alien to the will of the country; that is, because of moral and material aid given our enemies."

Coincident with this turnaround in the attitude of the press toward the United States it was noted that the newspapers were no so outspoken against Great Britain.

Yesterday's announcement by Hugh Dalton, British minister of economic warfare, that navies will be required to deliver gasoline, as well as other supplies, to Spain would normally have been the signal for an indignant outburst. But there was no comment.

O'Brien Demands Law to Stop Diversion of Highway Funds

Ashland—(AP)—Calling for condemnation of constant diversion of highway funds, William E. O'Brien, chairman of the state highway commission, recommended today adoption of a constitutional amendment to prevent continuance of the practice.

O'Brien spoke at the mid-summer convention of the county highway commissioners' association.

He deplored the "complacent indifference" of a majority of the public toward highway construction and maintenance, declaring "it is only when the highways become entirely unsatisfactory that concentrated protest will be received from the people." He added: "To my mind Wisconsin is, because of constant highway diversion, seriously jeopardizing the continued improvement of its highway system. My remarks in this connection are not to be considered political in any sense of the word. We are all familiar with the fact that diversion has been continued for a number of years and each of the three predominant political parties in the state are probably equally guilty in the matter of diversion."

O'Brien asserted various restrictions on allocations imposed by the federal and state governments had made "such inroads into the highway fund that at the present time the commission has no funds available to take care of any emergency that may arise."

The most pressing needs for reconstruction where the traffic is heaviest, he added, are in counties which originally bonded to build highways.

"These roads are either obsolete or worn out at the present time," he said. "The public roads administration is taking the position that their money should be spent on the highway priority roads as far as traffic is concerned, and frequently their requests are in counties where we have no funds available."

Committee Agrees On Hunter Type Pool

A Hunter swimming pool will be built in Appleton if the city council approves the recommendation of the pool committee at a special meeting tonight in city hall.

After months of mulling over the swimming pool problem, the board of public works yesterday voted to build a Hunter pool and called a meeting of the mayor's special committee last night. The committee voted unanimously to recommend the Hunter pool to the council.

The Hunter pool is a patented tank made by Hunter Swimming Pools, Inc., of Indianapolis, Ind. Proposed for Appleton is a pool 150 feet in diameter costing $48,709 including patent rights and engineering fees.

The circular pool, built like a saucer, is a departure from the tank types seen in Wisconsin and is comparatively new. It is patented by the Hunter company.

Mayor Goodland said this morning he believes it is the best pool for the greatest number of people because it embraces the features of a sea side beach plus swimming and diving facilities.

Shallow Area

The shallow edges of the saucer-like pool slope into a deep area in the center which is fenced in when the water reaches a depth of about four feet. In the central area is a huge diving tower with diving boards pointing into the deep area in a circle. A shallow area for very small children also is fenced.

Around the pool is a strip of sand beach, 25 feet wide and around that an 8-foot walk for spectators. It is intended to erect a frame bathhouse with open showers and dressing rooms, the latest development for pool bathhouses.

Floodlights and broadcasting speakers are fixed to a mast rising from the central pier and 20 ornamental cast iron vases for lights or plants are spaced around the circumference of the pool.

The Hunter fees include: $2,948 for conferences, preliminary studies, plans and specifications, $1,155 for supervision, $2,000 for the ornamental vases, $1,500 for the masthead and floodlighting equipment and $1,500 for the patent rights, a total of $9,103.

British Admit Ports Damaged

Minister Says Plans Made for Quick Shifts In Shipping Facilities

London—(AP)—Ronald H. Cross, minister of shipping, said in a broadcast to the empire today that Britain was prepared to meet emergency arising from destruction of her ports by German planes.

"Enemy action might at any time make sudden changes in our port arrangements," he said, "and we have made plans to meet such emergencies."

The minister's statement that Germany is hampering use of British ports was the first official confirmation that some of Britain's busiest pre-war harbors now are virtually closed, while normal traffic in others is displaced by war needs.

England expects to overcome all such handicaps, however, Cross said, declaring that the empire has "the greatest merchant fleet the world has ever seen."

Britain today ordered a blockade extending from the Arctic to northern Africa, effective at midnight tonight, an order in council giving effect to the policy announced in commons yesterday by Hugh Dalton, minister of economic warfare.

In the future, non-British shipping companies will have to agree always to employ navies—a form of passport for ship cargoes—in order to enjoy services such as coal, drydock and insurance facilities at Britain's worldwide ports.

The object of this system is to deter neutral shipping from attempted blockade running.

Bomb Ports

Berlin—(AP)—The German high command announced today that the important south English ports of Swansea and Plymouth were bombed last night in spite of bad weather hampering operations of the German air force.

Two British planes were shot down yesterday in raids over Germany during which they allegedly attacked the open city of Heidelberg, sources close to the high command reported.

Seven Young People Are Killed in Crash

Augusta, Ga.—(AP)—Seven boys and girls en route to a swimming party were killed yesterday when a fast freight train crushed their automobile at a crossing near here.

Six Augusta victims were R. A. Elliott, Jr., 19; his sister, 16-year-old Helen Elliott; their cousin, Corinne Elliott, 16; William Wheelless, 20-year-old student at Northern Illinois college of Optometrists at Chicago, Julian Baldowski and Harry Jarrell Sheppard, both 19, and Emma Baker, a 16-year-old visitor from Alapaha, Ga.

Favor 5 Billion More For Defense Program

United Front Presented by 21 Republics

All Delegates Sign Act of Havana but 8 Make Reservations

Havana—(AP)—The 21 American republics formally presented a united front today against political and economic dangers from other continents in a three-point program which Secretary of State Hull regarded with deep satisfaction despite last-minute reservations by eight nations.

The Havana conference, after setting up new machinery to bolster the solidarity of the western hemisphere, concluded last night with formal signature of documents amid flurries of cheers.

All the delegates signed the "Act of Havana" and supplementary agreements, although the Argentine delegation—which had argued against anticipating need of action concerning European colonies in the new world—led seven other nations in a succession of reservations.

The delegates of Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Uruguay and Venezuela specified that the agreements be ratified by their governments before participation. Mexico, Bolivia and Peru made reservations as to minor points.

Oppose Transfers

The program consists of:

1. The Act of Havana declaring all the republics opposed to transfer to other non-American nations or attempt to transfer or acquire interest in European possessions in this hemisphere.
2. Inter-American cooperation, through consultation and mutual exchange of information, to combat "fifth columnists" or other subversive elements.
3. Mutual effort to settle American economic problems, including market dislocations resulting from the European war, and "economic defense" against encroachment of European barter systems.

The Act of Havana provides for joint administration of any foreign possession threatened by a non-American nation, but also recognizes the right of any American republic to act singly or jointly in emergency situations.

Secretary Hull, who was applauded when he led the parade of signatures, issued a statement reviewing the conference as he embarked last night with other members of the United States delegation for Miami.

"The American republics, he said, 'have demonstrated to the world their unalterable determination to preserve and strengthen the spirit and the system of continental unity and solidarity.'"

Nearly 70 Homes Levelled in Fire

Factory Explosions Cause Worst Disaster in History of Camden

Camden, N. J.—(AP)—Blinding heat blocked today an immediate search for bodies of the missing dead after fire and explosions that destroyed a million-dollar factory and at least 67 homes in a four-block area at midtown Camden.

Mrs. Mary W. Kobus, director of public safety, expressed fear the death toll might exceed the number indicated in still incomplete checks. She said insurance underwriters thought "probably seven persons" were dead.

"But I am not so hopeful," said Mrs. Kobus, who remained at the scene all night.

With the picture still far from clear, unofficial reports on the $2,000,000 disaster—worst in Camden's history—showed:

Two known dead, four women and a man definitely missing and possibly four or five more unaccounted for—subjects of inquiries at hospitals and relief stations, but not given up.

200 Families Homeless

Upwards of 200 were injured or affected by heat or smoke. Of those in the hospitals, attendants said four were in critical condition.

An army of volunteers undertook the task of caring for scores of families made temporarily homeless. Most of these—about 200—were sheltered in dormitories of Camden's naval militia armory. A soup company supplied food.

Four hours after the first explosion at the R. M. Hollingshead Paint company plant, which set off the fires that grew quickly and spread, a state of emergency was declared in the stricken surrounding area.

Householders the city over were urged to use as little water as possible, with the supply feared running low at the roaring blaze. It was near dusk before the fire was brought under control.

Lewis Criticizes New Deal National Defense Policies

St. Louis—(AP)—Having heard John B. Lewis, critical views on the national defense program, the convention of the United Automobile Workers today awaited a speech by Sidney Hillman, a member of the president's defense council.

Lewis, head of the CIO, has often been a critic of the administration, while Hillman, CIO vice president, is regarded as a New Deal supporter. For that reason, convention delegates speculated on the possibility that Hillman (speaking this afternoon) might express views differing from those of his CIO associates.

In his speech yesterday, Lewis censured the government for giving business to concerns "which deny the rights of labor," denounced pending legislation for military conscription as a threat to democracy, minimized the effect of the national defense program on unemployment and warned against "a war state of mind."

Walks Into Spinning Propeller, Woman Dies

Waukesha, Wis.—(AP)—Miss Lois York, 21, of Milwaukee, died last night a few hours after she had walked into the spinning propeller of an airplane at the Waukesha airport.

Miss York had alighted from the plane after a ride with Raymond Homan, also of Milwaukee. Witnesses said she apparently did not see the propeller.

300 Reported Killed In Turkey Earthquake

Ankara, Turkey—(AP)—Government agencies speeded relief today to earthquake-stricken areas in the central-Anatolian plateau, where 300 persons were reported killed and hundreds injured yesterday by heavy tremors which destroyed 12 villages.

The affected region centered around Yozgad, 200 miles east of Ankara.

Limit Draft Bill to Men From 21 to 31

Senate Group Acts as Stimson Aids Possibility of Nazi Victory in Month

Washington—(AP)—The senate military committee amended the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military training bill today to require the registration only of men from 21 to 31 years old, instead of those between 18 to 64.

The senate group acted while the house military committee was hearing from Secretary of War Stimson testimony that a "prudent trustee" of the nation's defenses must realize that Great Britain might be conquered in 30 days and that Japan is in sympathy with Italy and Germany.

Stimson gave his full support to the Burke-Wadsworth bill and also sent word to the senate committee that the war department endorsed it and that the budget bureau had passed it.

Two senators, Thomas (R-Idaho) and Smathers (D-N. J.), emerged from a closed session of the senate committee to say that the registration age limit amendment was approved unanimously.

Smathers said the change was suggested by Senator Lee (D-Okla.), and seconded by Senator Bridges (R-N. H.). Final committee action on the bill will be taken tomorrow, Smathers said. It is expected to be approved.

Supporters of the measure estimated that the age alteration would reduce from 42,000,000 to about 12,000,000 the number of men to be registered.

Army officials had said previously that while those from 18 to 64 were to be registered, only men between 21 and 45 would be subject to selective draft for military service. The great majority of those called, these officials had said, would be in the 21 to 31 group.

The youngest and oldest groups were to be used to form home-guard units under the original provisions of the bill, but Smathers said this had been eliminated entirely from the measure.

Approval Sought

Some senate advocates of conscription had been seeking word of budget bureau approval as evidence that President Roosevelt was favorable to the bill. Mr. Roosevelt refrained from giving it any direct support.

Would Equip Army, Start 2-Ocean Navy

Washington—(AP)—With less than two hours' debate, the house passed and sent to the senate today a bill carrying $4,963,151,957 to start work on a 70 per cent expansion of the navy and provide modern weapons for a 2,000,000-man army.

Washington—(AP)—The house appropriations committee recommended today the spending of nearly five billion more dollars to start a "two ocean" navy and equip an army which might number 2,000,000 men on combat status.

The huge expenditure—exactly $4,963,151,957—which President Roosevelt said was necessary to give the nation "total defense," would bring the session's appropriations and contract authorizations for the army and navy to the record-breaking total of $10,040,225,543.

Of the pending bills total, $2,224,191,937 would be provided in direct appropriations and the balance of $2,728,950,000 in contract authorizations for which congress would have to provide the cash later.

While the committee emphasized that much of the equipment to be bought with the new money would not be obtainable for months to come, it asserted that approval of the program at this time would enable production and procurement agencies of the government to plan their work efficiently.

"Good Business"

"Piecemeal programs mean piecemeal preparation," the committee said, "which is neither sound preparation nor an emergency nor good business procedure."

During hearings on the measure, General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, testified that if congress authorizes immediate mobilization of the national guard and a system of compulsory military training—both of which he said were needed imperatively—an additional $1,000,000,000 would be needed for maintenance of such a force in the current fiscal year.

Specific details as to the number of tanks, guns and other weapons which would be procured under the new program were kept secret but the committee recommended approval of the budget bureau's request for 14,394 airplanes of various types, of which 4,028 would go to the navy, giving that service approximately 6,000 serviceable planes.

Although the navy's share of the new money would be only $1,058,156,540, the measure would commit the government, through contracts to be filled later, to expenditure of $4,422,500,000 for 200 new fighting ships and accompanying auxiliaries and aircraft for the proposed 70 per cent expansion of the navy.

The committee recommended restoration of the 12 per cent profit limitation on airplane procurement for both the army and navy. Congress reduced the figure to seven or in some cases eight per cent last month but government spokesmen said it had interfered seriously with the acquisition of aircraft, chiefly because sub-contractors were refusing to take contracts for aviation material.

In broad outline, the new funds and contractual authority would be as follows: new ship construction, $230,000,000; alteration and conversion of naval vessels, $75,000,000; aircraft for both army and navy, $2,068,402,304; material for army, navy and marine corps, $2,057,705,017; public works projects for army and navy, including housing and storage facilities, $158,352,800; additional production facilities, $335,000,000.

TVA Expansion Bill Goes to President

Washington—(AP)—A $25,000,000 appropriation to expand electric power production facilities of the Tennessee Valley authority for defense purposes was on its way to the White House today.

Congress approved it last night, expediting passage at the request of the national defense commission, which sought the extra power for production of aluminum for airplane construction and other defense materials.

Expansion of the TVA will include a new dam on the Holston river near Jefferson City, Tenn., a nearby steam plant, two additional generating units at Wilson dam, Ala., and one at Pickwick dam in Tennessee.

The house vote was 26 to 94; the senate did not take a roll call.

Manitowoc Firm to Appeal Board Ruling

Manitowoc—(AP)—The Aluminum Goods Manufacturing company announced last yesterday it would ask to have a labor board order, charging that the company discriminated against certain employees, reviewed before the United States circuit court of appeals at Chicago.

A. J. Vitts, company president, stated: "The company strongly dissents from the findings of the national labor relations board and intends to have the decision reviewed."

Huge Army of Candidates Ready For September Primary Battles

Madison—(AP)—Seven Republicans and three Democrats had filed papers seeking nomination for United States senator to succeed Robert M. LaFollette when the time limit for filing petitions expired at midnight Thursday. Approximately 200 nomination papers had been left with the secretary of state.

Senator LaFollette, Progressive, is the only candidate for a major office who is not opposed for nomination in his own party.

There are 12 candidates for nomination for governor, seven for lieutenant governor, six for secretary of state, eight for state treasurer, five for attorney general, 68 for member of congress from the state's ten districts.

The Republican senatorial candidates are Dr. Glenn Frank, Madison; Attorney Michael G. Eberlein, Shawano; Fred Clausen, Horton; William C. Maas and Dr. John P. Koehler, Milwaukee; Reuben W. Peterson, Berlin, Walt Chilsen, Merrill.

The democratic aspirants for the senate are William D. Carroll, Prairie du Chien; James E. Finnegan and James J. Kerwin, Milwaukee. Governor Julius P. Heil will be opposed for renomination on the Republican ticket by James K. Robinson of Milwaukee; while five Madison—(AP)—Contests in all parties for the Eighth district congressional nominations on three party tickets were revealed here last night as aspirants for the seat of Joshua L. Johns, Algoma Republican, joined scores of others in meeting the midnight deadline for the filing of nominating petitions at the capitol.

Representative Johns will have three opponents for the nomination in his own party. The well known Progressives of the district will fight it out for the Progressive nomination, while the Democratic situation in the primary is confused by an apparent attempt at a coalition with Progressive forces in the Fox river valley.

State Senator Michael F. Kresky, who earlier this week filed nomination papers as a candidate on the Progressive ticket, late yesterday filed another set of signatures bidding for the Democratic party nomination, strengthening reports in political circles of an understanding between the Progressive legislator and district New Deal leaders by which Kresky will make his bid as a Progressive with Democratic support.

Kresky is allowed by law to run on both tickets, but if he is nomi-

Al Smith Kicks Over Traces to Support Wilkie

Democratic Nominee In 1928 Offers to Campaign Actively

Colorado Springs, Colo.—(AP)—Wendell L. Wilkie is "greatly pleased" by the promise of Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic standard-bearer in 1928, to campaign actively in his behalf.

The brown-derbyed "happy warrior" and Samuel Seabury, former investigator of New York city's government, both declared for the Republican nominee late yesterday. Wilkie said he was gratified by the offers.

The nominee told reporters he had spent most of yesterday working on Republican organizational problems and that he would meet Saturday with Chairman Joe Martin of the Republican national committee. John Hamilton, the committee's executive director, and other party leaders.

Coordination of the various Wilkie-for-President groups that have pledged support is being undertaken, Wilkie said.

Welcomes Smith
"I am greatly pleased that one of Governor Smith's public standing and reputation should support me," Wilkie said after learning of the New Yorker's declaration.

He referred to President Roosevelt's recent comment that some prominent Democrats who had offered their support to Wilkie thought more of money than humanity, and remarked:

"I hope that is not said of Governor Smith. The man started from the sidewalks of New York. He was a great liberal governor of New York."

Smith, who took a walk out of his party's 1936 convention, said in a statement that "Wilkie's nomination at Philadelphia was brought about in a democratic and American way in contrast to the subversive and boss-controlled New Deal bloc who had the nerve to style themselves a democratic convention."

State Defaults on Payment Provisions of Forest Law

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison.—The exigencies of state finances and political alignments have drastically altered the operation of several laws enacted a decade ago to promote the restoration of Wisconsin forests, state records showed here today.

The actual operation of the state forest crop law and a supplemental statute designed to encourage municipal forestry bear little resemblance to the intended results put forth when the laws were enacted, according to expert observers of the state's conservation program.

The forest crop law, hailed at its inception as one of the most advanced methods of achieving forest restoration in the barren northern sections of the state, will be completely inoperative if present trends in financing the program are continued. The county forest program, while operating effectively

August 19 Proclaimed National Aviation Day

In recognition of the influence of aviation on the course of world events and of the part American initiative and industry have contributed to this development, President Roosevelt has proclaimed that Aug. 19 will be designated as National Aviation day. Flags will be flown from all government buildings, and appropriate exercises to stimulate interest in aviation will be staged.

Remodel Grade School to Get Four New Rooms

Remodeling of St. Therese grade school to provide four additional classrooms in the area formerly occupied by the chapel will be completed about Aug. 15, according to the Rev. M. A. Hauch, pastor.

The school and church were housed in the same building before the new church building was completed. Services have been conducted in the new church since May 12.

The eight grades formerly were crowded into six rooms on the second floor of the building, one in the church sacristy and another at the sisters' convent.

The remodeling of the building will provide 10 classrooms, six upstairs and four on the main floor, plus a large meeting room at the rear of the former chapel area, relieving congestion and providing ample space for classes.

34 Applicants Take Citizenship Exams

One application for United States citizenship was delayed for a year by B. C. McAdoo, Chicago, naturalization examiner, who conducted preliminary hearings on 34 applications at the courthouse Monday and Tuesday. The delay in one case was ordered when the applicant failed to tell that he had once been arrested and served a prison term for violating the prohibition law.

Mr. and Mrs. William Schinke, 1120 N. Morrison street, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kobs and son, Bobbie, Kaukauna, visited Sunday with Otto Warner, Seymour, who is seriously ill at a Madison hospital.

Each Side May Try to Starve Out the Other

Gayda Says Invasion Won't Come Soon; Facts on Bombings Hidden

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE

Virginia Gayda, authoritative Fascist writer, today told Italians not to look for an immediate invasion of England.

Whether Signor Gayda may be speaking with tongue in cheek, this warning sounds like horse-sense. Hitler is an opportunist and will strike when the time seems right, but it wouldn't be at all surprising if an assault by sea were delayed for some time.

The logical strategy, as I have pointed out before, is for the Nazis to try to reduce England to impotence by mass bombing before attempting to land troops. It would be a dangerous experiment to proceed otherwise.

For that reason one would expect the Nazis to inaugurate wholesale bombings by a mighty fleet of airships before trying the invasion. However, it is impossible to predict with any degree of certainty when Hitler will start moving his troops, because he may regard the bombing of England as considerably more effective than appears to the outside world from heavily-censored dispatches. One can only say that there is no present indication that Britain has suffered unduly thus far.

Whatever way you look at it, the Anglo-Axis war is headed for even greater tragedy than has yet been dealt out to unhappy Europe.

First has to be determined whether Herr Hitler can annihilate the English with his blitzkrieg—and this promises to provide one of the bloodiest battles in history, if he carries out his full program of invasion.

If he isn't able to knock Britain out in the immediate future by such an assault, the conflict will settle into a war of attrition. That will be nasty.

Starvation Tactics
Each side will try to starve the other into submission by blockade. Apart from the suffering produced by hunger this means economic chaos for the whole continent.

Both sides will increase the intensity of their bombings—winter weather permitting—which means that the skies will continue to drench civilians with horrible death.

Widespread reports have it that the Germans and Italians are ready to launch the big assault on England. We are justified in assuming from all the facts at hand that they are indeed prepared, but we must await the sailing of the armada before we shall know that the invasion is a certainty. There is so much propaganda about these days that we have to depend a good deal on our eyes for the truth.

Britain's line of strategy is clearly indicated by her announcement that her naval blockade will be extended to cover the entire continent of Europe, including Spain and Portugal. The Britons expect to beat off the blitzkrieg and intend to depend largely on the blockade to defeat the enemy.

More and more, too, Germany has been concentrating on creation of a counter-blockade about the British Isles. The Nazis are employing U-boats but are looking mainly to their great air fleet to enforce it.

The outcome of this starvation contest depends, of course, on how much the populations can stand in the way of punishment. It's not only a question of morale but of actual physical stamina.

U. S. Must be Ready for New Trade Problems

Nation Should be Rid of 'Laxness,' Higher Costs, Smith States

San Francisco.—(AP)—American industry can meet totalitarian competition in the world's markets and protect the future of free enterprise if it will begin now to rid itself of "laxness and our uneconomic trend toward higher costs," Edgar W. Smith, of General Motors corporation, told the national foreign trade convention today.

Looking forward to an early end of the European war, Smith warned the United States against committing itself to any system of barter, cartelization or other improved economic process in world trade.

When peace comes, he said, "the world once again will be in the market for a bargain—and America's hope and destiny lie in the fact that the free enterprise system has demonstrated its ability over all other systems to provide bargains."

President Roosevelt, in a written message to the convention last night said he had rejected the idea of some persons that the United States already had been defeated in its effort to maintain foreign trade on "liberal and democratic principles."

He said a few "faint-hearted defeatists" had suggested or implied that the country should abandon its present trade course.

If the United States adopted "totalitarian control" over foreign trade, the president said, it would be a step toward economic dictatorship.

"It is naive to imagine," he added, "that we could adopt a totalitarian control of foreign trade and at the same time escape the totalitarian regimentation of our internal economy."

CCC Life Has Been Healthful For Young Men

Training in Camps Non-Military, but It Toughens Youth

Washington.—(AP)—Although the civilian conservation corps is not a military organization, Director James J. McIntee declared today that it has proved to be an excellent training ground for young men reaching military age.

During the seven and one-half years of its existence, more than 2,500,000 young men have been passed through the corps. Their weight has increased, their general health has improved, and their physical condition has gone up from sub-standard to better than the standard of other youths the same age, McIntee said.

Twenty-five per cent of all men joining the corps were sub-standard in weight that the poundage required for acceptance had to be lowered materially. Another 45 per cent, although they met other requirements for acceptance, were below standard weight.

McIntee's report indicated that weight gains were made mostly during the first two months of service. Diet deficiencies, he concluded were common to many before enrollment.

"This demonstrates the value of the CCC as a means of improving the health and physical hardihood of young men," said the director, pointing out that thousands of youths, who could not have met the necessary physical standards for military service, have been built up to the point where they could pass "almost any examination."

The tuberculosis rate in the corps is about one-fifth that of the general population, and the venereal disease rate is about one-third that of the regular army, he reported.

McIntee observed that one of the greatest contributions made by the CCC has been its voluntary testing of a new vaccine against pneumonia developed by Dr. Lloyd C. Felton of the public health service. Forty-four per cent of all enrollees volunteered to take the vaccine since 1937, McIntee said, and "the results indicate that the vaccine has definite value as a preventative of pneumonia."

Hits Diversion Of Road Money

Droppers Says in 15 Years State Has Used $34,000,000 of Funds

Ashland.—(AP)—A. C. Droppers of Sheboygan, president of the Wisconsin County Highway Commissioners association, asserted in an address here late yesterday that in the last 15 years the state had diverted $34,000,000 from state highway funds.

"We were led to believe there had been no diversion," Droppers said at the opening session of the association's midsummer convention, held in connection with the county highway committee's association meeting.

"Because of highway revenues not being spent through proper channels we are safe to assume it has caused taxpayers an additional $34,000,000 in added relief, added driving costs, added maintenance costs," he said.

"Add this to the $34,000,000 that was used and will again have to be paid in gas taxes and you have a staggering sum."

"Some people would have you believe we do not need this money for highway purposes. If that be the case, let us go on record to reduce our gas tax. Improved construction and maintenance are sorely needed. Put the revenues of this tax through right channels and much needed improvements would be forthcoming."

Droppers was elected permanent chairman of the association and Dr. George Theiler of Tomahawk, president of the committee's association, was elected secretary.

War Situation Today

Italy Says Invasion Deferred But Hitler Masses His Troops

Italy was told today that England probably will not be invaded until the British people are weakened by bombs and blockade.

Even as Italian troops were reported moving up to the 800-mile German-held continental coastline for the projected assault, Virginia Gayda, fascist editor, cautioned his countrymen not to expect to attack immediately.

Whether his article, which appeared in Il Giornale d'Italia, actually spoke the mind of Premier Mussolini or was intended merely to confuse the British as to prospects for an immediate assault was a matter of speculation.

The belief that the blow might be struck at any moment, however, was strengthened by reports from Vichy, France, that postal, telephone and telegraph communications had been suspended between German-occupied France and that part which is still free.

A plea which some observers took as an implication that Spain will try to stay out of the war was voiced in a Madrid newspaper—a plea for help from the United States to put Spain back on her feet after her civil war.

German bombers continued to pick at the British Isles, but the fierceness of the recent attacks was somewhat abated.

Reports from the continental storm centers pictured these as last-minute preparations for simultaneous attack on England and her fortress rock, Gibraltar.

1—Speeded movements of German troops west through France, masked by closing of rail communications to unoccupied France and all outlets but one to Switzerland; 2—concentration of Spanish troops at Gila Linea, back door to Gibraltar; 3—massing of Italian warplanes at Sardinia to join the Spanish in a possible drive to seize Gibraltar.

Germans claimed the bomber raids have damaged many of England's important south and east ports so badly that ships bringing food to the embattled island can no longer use them. Instead, it was said, much shipping has had to be routed to western ports—and even these are accessible targets for German bombers.

Rumania's foreign minister Mihail Manolescu declared that his government would drive a hard bargain in negotiating the territorial demands of Bulgaria and Hungary at German's order.

The conference of Havana, uniting the Americas against foreign aggression, closed last night amid cheers and document-signing although seven other republics joined Argentina in making last-minute reservations to their commitments.

In Tokyo, a foreign office spokesman said Japan would reject British protests over the arrests of British citizens. In an "espionage" roundup-up and indicated that persons of other nationality might be involved. Authorized sources in London said Britain has demanded the release of all British subjects arrested.

Says Accused Killer

Made Noise Like Bee

Madison.—(AP)—A sister of Raymond White, Sr., 38, testified as a defense witness in municipal court late yesterday that White acted silly and made noises like a bee shortly before his wife, Helena, 32, was clubbed to death with a baseball bat July 6.

White is on trial charged with first degree murder.

The sister, Mrs. Margaret Forsthofer, was the first of three witnesses called by the defense, which contends that White was insane when his wife was killed.

White's stepfather, Henry T. Welch, testified that it was his impression that White was irrational.

Alderman Leland Feavel, chairman of the council committee for cooperation in the Kaukauna ses-

Wisconsin Leads States in Tame Hay Production

Record Crop of Over 7 Million Tons Is Expected in 1940

This year Wisconsin will lead all other states in tame hay production with the largest crop ever harvested in the state, according to crop reporting service estimates received by County Agent J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

The circular, "Winter Rye, Growing and Feeding," was written by E. J. Delwiche, A. R. Albert, and G. Bohstedt of the college of agriculture. It points to the fact that winter rye ranks first in yield of all small grains grown on the heavier northern and central Wisconsin soils and that in southern Wisconsin it exceeds as a temporary forage crop for spring pasture. Nor is the crop hard to grow, says the circular. It is dependable, does well on sandy soils, and yields still better on clay and loam soils. In 1933, while winter wheat and various hay crops were badly damaged by an ice-crust at Marshfield, winter rye came through and was able to produce an average crop.

Most droughts fail to affect the crop, since most of its growth is made during the fall and early spring. It ripens early and is less apt to lodge than other small grains. No small grain has been of greater value as a cover crop to retain soil nutrients; to plow under as green manure; to prevent soil erosion by wind and water; and to supply early spring pasture.

Winter rye can be sown from Aug. 1 to Nov. 1, although winter injury is more apt to occur with October sowings. It is possible to sow winter rye after cultivated row crops such as potatoes or corn without plowing. No seed bed preparation is needed other than to smooth off the humps and ridges with a suitable implement.

Plans for entering three girls in the dress review at the Outagamie county home demonstration, style review and judging contests at the Seymour fair grounds Thursday were discussed at a meeting of the G. F. C. 4-H club last Friday night at the home of Norbert Techlin, route 3, Appleton. Games followed the business meeting. The next meeting will be Aug. 9 at the home of Miss June Ziegler, route 3, Appleton.

South Greenville Grange, in co-operation with a glass manufacturing company and the State Grange, will sponsor a Home Economics day at 1:30 Friday afternoon at South Greenville Grange hall. Miss Margaret Murphy, a home canner, will demonstrate the latest methods in canning.

Miss Murphy is a graduate of Burlington High school and Iowa State college where she received her B. S. degree in home economics. She has worked with Grange women in four states and other organizations in ten states.

4-H Club Members to Hold Demonstration And Judging Contests

Outagamie county 4-H judging and demonstration contests will be held at the Seymour Fair grounds starting at 9 o'clock Thursday morning, according to Miss Irene Skutley, home demonstration agent. The style review will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Winners of the judging and demonstration contests and the style review will enter state competition at the state fair at Milwaukee. Miss Grace Rountree, assistant state 4-H club leader, Madison, will be present at the contests.

Water Most Important In Diet of Poultry

One hundred laying hens may drink as much as eight gallons of water a day during the summer, D. F. Sowell, poultry specialist with the Florida Agricultural Extension service, says in a bulletin received by County Agent J. F. Magnus.

"Water is the most important item in the poultry diet," Sowell says. "Fifty-six per cent of the hen and 65 per cent of the egg is composed of water. Poultry can live longer without feed than water."

In proportion to weight, he explains, chickens drink twice as

Rye Excels as Temporary Spring Pasture Forage Crop

Winter rye, out in front for grain yields in northern and central Wisconsin and the No. 1 crop for temporary spring pasture all over the state, gets new recognition in a circular received by J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

Revise Rules On Livestock

Regulations Changed To Meet Present Day Needs in Wisconsin

Regulations governing the health of Wisconsin livestock for about a quarter of a century have been revised by the state department of agriculture to meet present-day conditions, R. Ralph E. Arpmon, department director, announces in a bulletin to J. F. Magnus, Outagamie county agent.

Further protection is now afforded against the introduction of Bang-infected cattle into Wisconsin through a change in the regulations relating to cattle imports, Arpmon says.

Unless the imported cattle originate from Bang-free herds they must, hereafter, be held in quarantine and retested for Bang's disease by an approved veterinarian before being sold or introduced into other herds.

Formerly it was permissible to import cattle that had passed one negative test within 30 days prior to importation. This had made it possible to import cattle exposed to Bang infection in a herd, Arpmon points out.

Heat May Injure Hogs, Farmers are Warned

Hogs easily may become overheated or badly sunburned during this hot weather because of their nature and conformation and the fact that they do not sweat, E. L. Quafie, Iowa state husbandman, warns in a bulletin to County Agent J. F. Magnus.

For this reason adequate shade should be provided. A wallow also will help the pigs stand the heat, but it is not as satisfactory as shade.

White hogs are more apt to suffer from effects of the sun than are black or red hogs. Plenty of drinking water will help to lower the hogs' body temperature and reduce the chance of overheating, Quafie explains.

4-H Club Holds Wiener Roast

45 Young People Attend Program at Robert Techlin Home

Forty-five young people and parents attended a wiener and marshmallow roast given by Wide Awake Forward 4-H club Friday night at the home of Robert Techlin, route 3, Appleton. Entertainment was planned by Carlton Wiekert, Marguerite Wiekert and Rita Henke, and the lunch committee consisted of Le Vern Kreutzman, Robert Techlin and Muriel Sommers.

The next meeting will be Aug. 9 at the home of Donald Tiedt, route 2, Black Creek.

At a committee meeting Monday night at the home of Miss Mae Belle Plamann, route 3, Appleton, plans were completed for a wiener roast Aug. 7 at Stroebe's Island for members of Columbine 4-H club. Others on the committee are Eugene Palzer and Richard Palmbach.

The club will meet Friday night at the Plamann home to turn in their entry blanks for the Seymour fair and conduct other club business.

nated on both he will have to choose one or the other. His opponent in the Progressive primary will be Walter Melchior, Appleton lawyer.

In the Democratic party the candidates are Joseph F. Konop of Kewaunee and Charles J. Mulloy of DePere.

Should Kresky win both nominations, observers here pointed out, he could decline the Democratic nomination and run as a Progressive.

Although the Democratic party in that case would be empowered under the law to name a candidate for the vacant place on the ticket, such procedure is usually ineffective, as was shown in 1938 when the Democratic State Central committee drafted Senator Harry Bolens for governor after the withdrawal of Robert K. Henry.

It has been reported also that a part of the understanding between Kresky and Democratic chieftains involves Kresky's support for the Democratic candidate for the state senate to succeed him. It was considered probable that the Progressives might refrain from putting up a senate candidate, but late last night papers for Rasmus Anderson, Green Bay Progressive, were filed in the secretary of state's office.

Johns' opponents for the nomination are George Millard of New London, George Kust of Two Rivers, and Francis Dilleit of Marinette.

All are comparative newcomers to politics. Dilleit is editor of a Marinette newspaper.

outspoken support at his press conference yesterday. He said he previously had expressed his views on the subject of compulsory training.

One such occasion which the president may have had in mind was in his broadcast address accepting the third-term nomination when he said that "because of the millions of citizens involved in the conduct of defense, most right-thinking persons are agreed that some form of selection by draft is as necessary and as fair today as it was in 1917 and 1918."

Stimson told the house committee that the only way for the nation to "meet a war situation" is by compulsory military service.

He described the system of voluntary enlistments as "a costly failure."

Cites Jap Attitude

Of the dangers which he considers this country to face, the war secretary said:

"A prudent trustee must take into consideration that in another 30 days Great Britain may be conquered and her fleet come under enemy control. Across the Pacific there is a powerful Japan in sympathy with Italy and Germany."

Final action on the Burke-Wadsworth military training bill was held up yesterday by the senate military committee after arguing over Republican demands that President Roosevelt formally disclose his views.

Instead, the committee gave speedy and unanimous clearance to the bill authorizing the chief executive to order the national guard and the officers reserve corps into active training for a year.

Democratic leader Barkley said he expected little opposition to the national guard measure in the senate, where it may be taken up late this week.

Supports Measure

The bill to call the national guard for training anywhere in the western hemisphere, American possessions and the Philippines received prompt support from the army high command.

General George C. Marshall, chief of staff, told the senate military committee yesterday that the army would bring four divisions and 23 smaller units into active training if the bill passes.

American-owned aviation firms operating outside the hemisphere, however, still will be able to get the fuel.

"In the interests of the national defense, the export of aviation gasoline is being limited to nations of the western hemisphere, except where such gasoline is required elsewhere for the operations of American-owned companies."

Early said he did not know whether the United States had been exporting aviation gasoline to England. The administration recently stopped two oil tankers bound for Spain.

City to Take Up Land Options

H. P. Hoefel Notifies Owners Council Will Buy Land for Course

Harry P. Hoefel, city attorney, said today he has sent notices to property owners informing them that the city will take up the options on land needed for the proposed addition to the municipal golf course.

The property totals about 52 acres and lies to the east and to the west of the present course. An 18-hole golf course will be built on the land.

Whether the city can use the Estelle Reed legacy, about $10,000, to improve the land, will be decided at a hearing Aug. 6 before County Judge Fred V. Heinemann, Hoefel said.

The Reed will left the money to the city and specified it should be "used for park and playground purposes exclusively." The hearing will be conducted to determine whether a golf course can be considered a park or a playground.

Development of the property will be deferred until the question is settled. The additional land will cost about $12,000.

NYA Makes Containers for Kimberly Cleanup Experiment

Kimberly — Rubbish containers being constructed by NYA sheet metal workers at the high school will be put into trial service in different sections of the village this fall. One hundred will be distributed, with 25 each in four sections of the village. If the plan is successful, each family will be provided with a container.

The containers will be for ashes and tin cans, as all garbage and combustible material must be burned. Under the new setup, waste on ground would not be picked up by the village crew. The new boxes are built so that they can be taken inside and placed near the furnace during the winter months for ashes. About 20 boys are engaged in the work under the supervision of Henry Patch. Sixty containers already are completed.

The Brownies of the Girl Scout organization are attending camp this week at Telulah park, Appleton, under the supervision of the day camp director, Miss C. Nabor. Appleton, and is assisted by Mrs. Phil McCarthy, Miss Marion Anderson and Miss Mary Van Daalwyck.

The senior girl scouts will hold a meeting Wednesday afternoon to complete plans for their camping trip at Chalk Lake. They will leave Sunday and camp for one week.

The Presbyterian church and its Sunday school pupils were entertained at a picnic at Telulah park, Appleton, Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The Rev. L. C. Smith, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will have charge of services at the Presbyterian church at Oconto Sunday in the absence of the pastor there who is vacationing. Mrs. Smith will deliver the sermon at the local Presbyterian church.

Henry Ford at 77

"The United States won't get into this war because our people know from experience that only a limited few with financial investments involved ever profit from war."

So spoke Henry Ford on his birthday. Old eyes are not supposed to see best and yet most often they actually see clearest.

We should have learned from that last experience. There is no profit in war. There is no accomplishment. There is only heartache and disillusionment.

But the same experience that tells us to keep clear should warn us that the groups intent upon involving us in this war are many, strong, and exceedingly well equipped with money and influence.

Today probably a half million dollars will be spent by these groups, and tomorrow the same amount, and so on while the battle rages. Sane investigators believed that at least 150 million dollars a year was spent in the former world war from its start until our declaration, in order to involve us.

Our war spreading groups are resourceful and versatile. Their campaign is to edge us, little by little, to the precipice. And every step we take is bound to weaken our resistance to further steps.

Mr. Ford's words are welcome. They will help keep the people awake. But the most important thing about the present situation is the stealthy nature of the means employed to brush away America's reluctance to take up the sword.

Propaganda still has a lot of trickery about it and in it.

What France Expected From America

Clare Booth, the well known playwright, has dropped a bomb into our peaceful American scene with her book, "Europe in the Spring."

With easy entree to the offices of the mighty everywhere the author heard and recorded an amazing amount of opinion even as the Continent was smilingly walking toward the precipice. What she has to say concerning expectations in France of America's immediate response to any call for help should be at least interesting.

We quote:

"I complained one day to M. Leger who was then Permanent Secretary of Foreign Affairs, that I wished that France had a more eloquent, American-wise propagandist for an Ambassador in Washington than Count Rene de Saint-Quentin—somebody like Lord Lothian, for instance. He was indignant. 'M. Saint-Quentin gets everything for France he asks,' he said haughtily. I said, 'Then your demands are very much more modest than America fears they might be.' And he said with gentle slyness: 'You don't know what M. Saint-Quentin asks or gets! He may not be very popular with Americans, but he is a most intimate friend of your President, which is better.' 'Oh, I know about 5,000 of Mr. Roosevelt's most intimate friends,' I said and let it go at that. I think it made many Americans in France angry and unhappy and uneasy to see how everybody loved Mr. Roosevelt and despised America. M. Leger was no exception. Like every other politician in France, he didn't care a boot what Americans thought; only about what Mr. Roosevelt said, personally. Everybody in France trusted Mr. Roosevelt implicitly."

"I never met a single man on the street or a single man in high authority who wasn't utterly convinced that if France ever should be on the verge of defeat, Roosevelt would bring a recalcitrant America quickly to heel and pour all its enormous resources into the breach. I know that in those last awful days of early June, it was a bitter, bitter check to them and to little M. Reynaud that not only Mr. Roosevelt couldn't bring America into war, but that he could not even send what it turned out rather suddenly we didn't have, and which, nobody apparently had told them, for us before we didn't have, 'clouds of airplanes'."

France's perfect and complete trust in the suppurative words of our president as he traveled around this country and uttered imprecations against totalitarians turned out a heavy handicap. It was evident from the cablegrams of Premier Reynaud that the French government as well as the French people were shocked to look westward and see none of our transports or cruisers upon the horizon.

And that brings us back to the great secret at Washington—what was in that final desperate cablegram from the French government to Mr. Roosevelt that the President has refused to make public?

Jehovah's Witnesses

A sect calling itself Jehovah's Witnesses has thrown up quite a little dust throughout the country on account of its peculiarities.

In the most tolerant country in the world respecting religious or political beliefs the members of this sect have been slapped a little, pushed around somewhat and booted a lot.

The difficulty is in the manner usually adopted by the Witnesses to spread their ideas. They are loud and offensive. They make people angry who would never think of molesting them if they hired a hall or otherwise conducted themselves in the usual manner.

One of their peculiarities has to do with a refusal to salute the flag. They quote the Bible in defense of their attitude. They allege the flag is a "graven image" and that it is prohibited as a false god. A salute they denominate worship. And there they have it, saluting a flag is worshipping a graven image.

We do not know whether the men among them tip their hats to ladies. That would be a salute but hardly to a graven image. Surely they must not wave their hands at the old homestead when they are leaving for a long journey else they may be worshipping in defiance of the commands from Above.

We learn that Hitler has hundreds of the Witnesses in concentration camps for disobedience in a land where saluting the flag is a fetish. But it is evident in this country that pronounced Fifth Columnists are pretending to be Jehovah's Witnesses so they may create disorder in the name of God.

In the consistent American way this sect will be handled to preserve its honest rights and to winnow out of its ranks the pretenders who are using it for that very old purpose of picking the chestnuts out of the fire.

Portugal Better Watch Out

The government at Lisbon is about as totalitarian as they make them but remains a very good friend of England, indicating how effectively good trade relations make for peace. For centuries London merchants have purchased nearly the entire wine output of this important wine country and distributed it throughout the world. They have simply had to remain friends.

But even such affectionate regard does not justify the Portuguese telling the story on Italy that is circulating around Lisbon. As belated to Life this is the tale;

"In each Italian parachute plane there are 20 men; 1 pilot, 1 co-pilot, 1 radio operator, 1 mechanic, 1 parachutist and 15 men to push him out."

This is worse than a ribald jest and is certain to make Il Duce florid and furious but it contains a grain of accuracy insofar as it reflects the disinclination of the Italian people to fight free nations and particularly England with which fine and friendly relations have existed so long.

Buying the Prosecutor

The Kenosha crook who wrote the district attorney from the jail offering him compensation to "help me out of this case" received a shocking sentence from the court for his attempt to bribe.

But probably few prosecutors in Wisconsin serve out a term without receiving directly corrupt offers or implied feelers toward bribery.

Probably most district attorneys feel that they would be assuming a holy attitude by putting their unsupported word against that of the accused by swearing out a warrant. But a sentence like that at Kenosha, stiff and strong, shows 'that it might be better to bring such fellows out in the open however unpalatable it may be to a prosecutor to make a personal issue in such situations.

Certainly no one at Kenosha is likely to bring any tainted money along with him to the prosecutor's office while the memory of this recent case lingers.

Why Spend the Billions?

After 150 years as a nation this country finds itself with only one man fit to direct its destiny, according to one of its major political parties.

If this conception of America be true, may we humbly but courteously inquire for what purpose we are spending all these billions in creating a great national defense?

Certainly no country with only one man fit to rule it is worth defending. What, in the name of heaven, have we to save when we have already made such a miserable wreck of our lives?

And if we are as dumb above our ears, as thick-headed and bovine as the Democratic national convention describes us, Hitler won't need the English navy when he attacks our shores.

He could come in a row boat.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

AT MIDNIGHT

I go to sleep in the dark.
Certain, that after the night,
Morning will flood the sky
With the beneficence of light.
I have no proof I will wake
Tomorrow and hear birds singing.
But confidently I dream
Of the joy the dawn is bringing.
I hope I shall recollect
This truth in the darkest hour,
When sorrow puts out the light
And curtains the rose-twined bower.
I must remember then
That grief is a bird in flight
And morning will tip its wings
With the Happiness of light!

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—After seven years of stalling over one of the most important raw materials to American industry, the state department actually is doing something about the U. S. tin supply.

In cooperation with the National Defense commission, state department officials are doing three things:

1. Talking with Jesse Jones about an RFC loan to establish a tin smelter in the United States. The U. S. firms in on this are Phelps Dodge, National Lead, American Metals, and the American Smelting and Refining company.

2. Facilitating the visit of the world's biggest tin king, Simon Patino, to the United States; also holding conversations with Mauricio Hochschild, big German-Jewish producer of Bolivian tin.

3. The National Defense commission has ordered 75,000 tons of metallic tin from the Malay peninsula and the Dutch East Indies.

This is almost enough to last the United States for half a year—if it ever gets here. But the catch is that the tin is still down in the mines of Malaya and must not only be mined and smelted, but also shipped half way around the world. Meanwhile the Japanese may move into this area of the South Pacific, or the Germans may crush the British combine which controls Malay tin, or the British may decide that they need the tin for their own military purposes.

ONLY THREE WEEKS SUPPLY

All of which reveals one of the most inexcusable chapters of national defense neglect in recent history.

Almost nobody knew that on Jan. 1 of this year, U. S. stocks of tin were so low that we had only three weeks supply. And few people know what the exhaustion of our supply would mean to American life and industry. Not only tin but also tin cans, which is a major industry, but it would eventually mean a blackout for every American home not lighted by gas or kerosene lamps. For the contact point of every electric light bulb is made of tin.

Furthermore, the U. S. Fleet would be laid up in a few months for lack of tin for bearing replacements. The same would apply to automobiles, and to many other products intimately woven into American life.

BOLIVIAN OVERTURES

Despite this, the state department literally ignored representations by the Bolivian government to work out a trade agreement whereby the United States would secure tin not from the South Pacific, but from inside the western Hemisphere, thus avoiding dangerous shipping hauls, and the danger of foreign controls.

First Bolivian overture to the state department was made by charge d'affaires Enrique Lozada in June, 1933, at the suggestion of the Washington Merry-Go-Round. At that time, Acting Secretary of State William Phillips, now ambassador to Rome, turned a deaf ear. He said the United States was not interested.

Then the late Representative Sam McReynolds of Tennessee introduced legislation placing an excise tax on the importation of crude tin, in order to encourage its smelting in the United States. Whereupon the state department actually intervened to kill the bill, causing its author to protest to his old friend Cordell Hull.

"This memorandum," said McReynolds, referring to the state department's memo opposing the tax on crude tin, "could have been no more favorable to British interests if it had been written in the British Foreign Office."

OPPONENTS OF PLAN

By that time it had become apparent that the chief opponents of having Bolivian tin smelted in the United States were (1) the British tin monopoly; (2) the Patino tin interests, which were shipping ore all the way from Bolivia to Liverpool, thence back to the United States, in order to enjoy British monopoly price-fixing; and (3) the National Lead Company and perhaps also other heavy U. S. users of tin, which seemed to be linked up with the British-Patino interests.

For instance, the late Edward J. Cornish, chairman of National Lead, also was chairman of Patino Mines and Enterprises, while the present chairman of the Patino company, Fletcher W. Rockwell, is also president of National Lead.

Thus big American business appeared to be cooperating with the British-Patino monopoly, despite national defense interests, while the state department appeared to condone that cooperation.

But now, suddenly awakening to the grave danger of the situation, the state department is trying desperately to make up for past negligence. Several days ago it sought to arrange for space on a clipper plane for Patino to come to the United States. But since his family almost fills one clipper, he is en route by boat.

NAZIS IN BOLIVIA

Meanwhile Jesse Jones, in cooperation with the state department, is discussing an RFC loan to set up a tin smelter in the United States, with a possible subsidy of one or two cents a pound on smelted tin. The first company to show an interest was Phelps Dodge, but more recently American Metals, American Smelting and Refining, and National Lead have shown interest.

Meanwhile Hochschild, who has been mining tin in Bolivia for ten years, informed the National Defense commission that he was ready to do immediate business. But the defense commission, like the State Department, bowed to the tin king and said they would wait for Patino's arrival.

Most ominous development has been the recent and sudden activity of Nazi interests in Bolivia to try to block these deals. The Bolivian army, long trained by German officers and leaning heavily toward the Nazis, is doing everything possible to sabotage the negotiations now being conducted by Bolivian Minister Guachalla in Washington.

Note—Dr. W. V. Elliott, Harvard expert, comments on the present tin situation: "Today the prospect of Japanese domination of Asia and of German domination of Europe and the whole of its colonies presents this country with an entirely changed strategic situation, desperate in its implications. The securing and processing of these vital strategic materials is no longer an arguable point. It may be a matter of survival itself of the American people."

MILLIONAIRE LIBRARIAN

Archibald MacLeish, dynamic young head of the Library of Congress, has added another innovation to the famed institution—a millionaire assistant. He is Arthur A. Houghton, Jr., new chief of the Library's rare book division. Known in the business world as a leading glass manufacturer, Houghton is also well known in literary circles as an expert on rare books and early American papers, and the possessor of one of the finest collections of both. It was this lifelong hobby that led to his appointment by MacLeish.

Houghton, nephew of Alanson B. Houghton, former U. S. Ambassador to Germany, gets $4,400 a year.

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington — It begins to look as though the people who live in Washington are going to get to vote.

The 60-year battle for suffrage is coming to a head. For the first time, so far as I can find out, citizens of the nation's capital got one of the major parties to stick a silver plank in their platform saying: "We also favor the extension of the right of suffrage to the people of the District of Columbia."

It happened at Chicago and under ordinary circumstances action on the plank would be deferred until after the elections, or in other words until the next session of Congress. But it seems certain that Congress will work right on through, and already a congressman has thrown down the glove to Rep. Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia, saying in effect: "If you and your party are so eager for this suffrage, why don't you get up a measure at once and pass it?" And Mr. Randolph answered, in effect: "That's exactly what we hope to do."

It should be some kind of a commentary on the loopholes in American government that the nearly 700,000 persons in the District of Columbia do not have the right to vote, self-government, or representation in Congress.

There are 14 states that have less or only slightly greater population than the district, yet each has two senators, some as many as three representatives, and all have votes in the electoral college.

With the conventions out of the way and politicians settling down to picking over the bones, there's a growing conviction here that Paul V. McNutt came out of Chicago with colors flying.

All over the place you hear how the Indiana boy made good. First, he was wise enough to duck the presidency long before the convention started. A huge picture of Roosevelt covered one wall of his palatial Chicago headquarters. Secondly, concentrating on the vice-presidency, McNutt's organization went into that Thursday session with enough pledges to assure his nomination on the second or third ballot. Even some of his opponents admit that.

It has been said time and again that McNutt could have blocked the nomination of Henry Wallace; probably could have taken it away from him. So it was McNutt who made the real sacrifice for party solidarity when he pulled himself out of the race. That strengthened his following.

It seems inconceivable that McNutt should fail to play a prominent role in the next four years. His refusal to buck Roosevelt permitted him to come out of the fracas with the McNutt organization developing a good deal more horsepower than when he went in.

WISCONSIN'S ERROR

Editor Post-Crescent: An editorial in the Appleton Post-Crescent, Thursday, July 25, having to do with The Wisconsin State Insurance company, says its policies are not popular.

The Wisconsin State Insurance company insures only state, county, and city buildings and has every reason to believe that they are serving a real purpose by cutting the insurance rates fifty per cent from the rates charged by old line insurance companies.

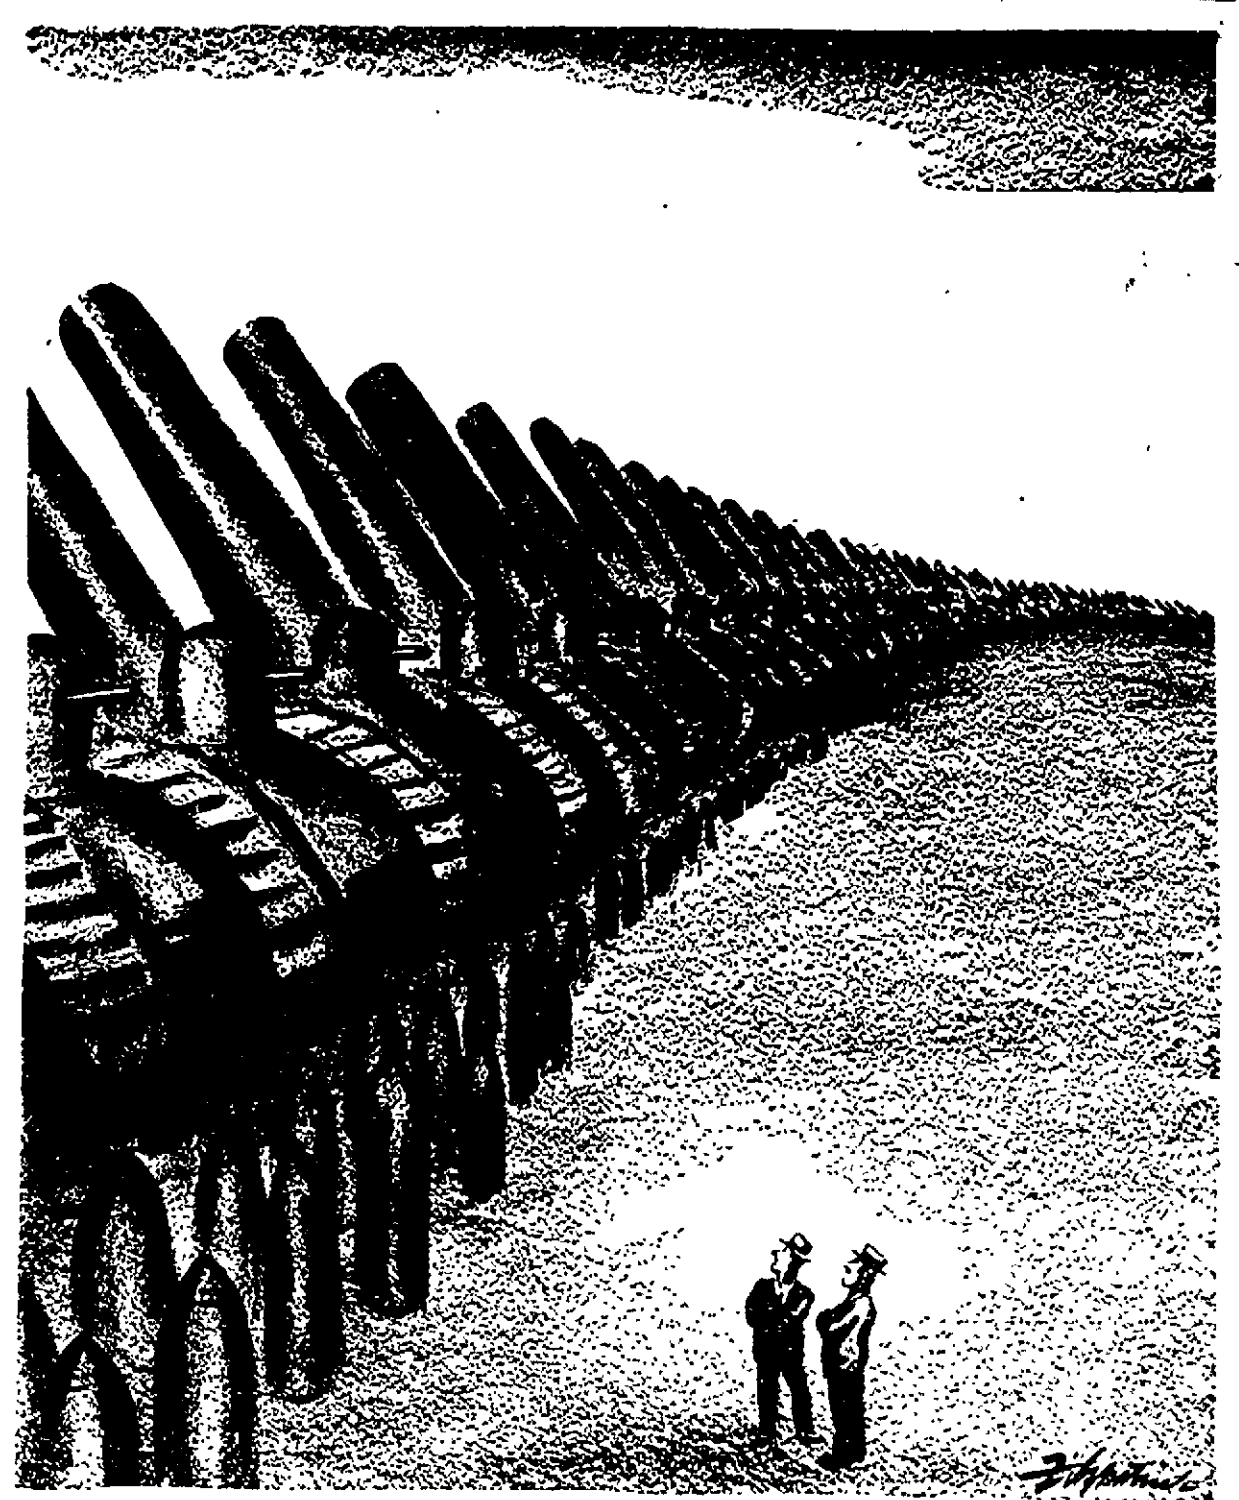

Outagamie county could save from twelve to fifteen thousand dollars per year if they carried state insurance. The criticism mentioned in the editorial, the critical examination made by Julius reveals that a large share of the insurance reserve has been used in building a state office annex and a hospital for the university which, to me, seems the thing to do if additional buildings are needed; and they can build them from the revenue derived from insurance and still save Outagamie county $12,000 to $15,000 per year.

I'm for it; $12,000 does not grow on bushes and Outagamie county should take advantage of every reasonable opportunity to cut the continual growing expense and here is one good way to begin.

Take a look at another angle of the insurance situation applied to Outagamie county in the year 1938. Insurance to the tune of $344,500 was written by one insurance agent of the city of Appleton that called for a premium of $2,654.44 and another premium of $7,232.32 for a coverage of $111,000 insurance by a group of Appleton insurance agents. Twenty-seven Outagamie county insurance agents operating in Outagamie county carried insurance in Outagamie county to an amount of $52,300, making a total of $507,800. All this insurance was carried by eighteen foreign companies, foreign affiliates, or foreign-controlled companies which would rather have the state of Wisconsin insurance or foreign insurance.

I was appointed on the Insurance committee the following year and was instrumental in putting into the discard foreign insurance.

"Who's Going to Man All This Equipment?"

Under the Capitol Dome

BY JOHN WINGAARD

Madison — Although any dissension which exists cannot be compared to the chronic internal disorders in the Wisconsin Democratic organization, all is not serene in the inner circles of state Republican leadership.

The reader goes on to say she was very sick with colitis three years ago. She grew thin, weak and miserable. Everything she ate hurt her. X-rays proved there was no serious trouble, but just mucous colitis.

(Note by Brady: How any such thing could be proved by X-rays is far beyond my ken. But let the lady continue with her story.)

"Then I began to read about wheat germ in your column. I procured a supply and began eating two heaping tablespoons, chewing it all up before every meal, and two heaping tablespoons before going to bed. I believe I must get about four ounces daily this way."

"In a short time I was cured of all colitis trouble. You may be sure I have continued eating the wheat germ every day the year around, and I am everlastingly grateful to you for teaching me about its value. For the benefit of those who claim one can't eat so much wheat germ let me say that I find taking this neither disagreeable nor too filling. In fact I enjoy it. It keeps me from stuffing on rich foods that are not so good for me, and keeps my weight normal. Altogether it seems to have none but good effects on my general health and digestion. I can't eat bran and other rough foods, but wheat germ never gives me any trouble. It keeps me regular, and prevents flatulence and pain."

The germ or embryo of wheat is the small portion near one end of the wheat kernel from which wheat sprouts or germinates or grows. The germ part constitutes about 5 per cent of the whole kernel. In the milling of wheat to produce refined white flour all of the germ portion, along with the outer coats of the kernel, the bran, is removed—it goes into "middlings" to be used chiefly as feed for fowl and animals.

Any miller who cares to bother can catch out a few pounds of fresh wheat germ.

Republicans who have been engaged in the fund raising work indicate that the party will not lack means this year. In some counties where campaign work in previous years had to be underwritten by state headquarters local collectors now report collections exceeding their budgets. Assisting the drive now underway is a special representative of national headquarters, which gets a slice of all local collections.

It is worthy of note that the confusion and duplication which have traditionally been characteristic of campaign finance drives in Wisconsin politics has this year been eliminated by the Republican party as a part of its recent reorganization program.

In former years it was conceivable that a known contributor to the party chest could expect to be solicited over and over again by various party committees in the state and the localities, by the innumerable candidates for office on the party ticket, and by special voluntary campaign groups working in behalf of various candidates.

As far as it is possible this year the funds will be raised by a single group, the executive committee's finance committee, and disbursed by the same group.

A county budget quota system has been set up for every county, and a corresponding collection quota has been set up for every county and locality.

WHEAT GERM DAILY

A reader says she noticed in this column recently mention of someone who claimed four ounces of wheat germ cannot be eaten daily; that one who tries to eat so much wheat germ would find himself not hungry for other food. The reader says she has found that not true.

The reader goes on to say she was very sick with colitis three years ago. She grew thin, weak and miserable. Everything she ate hurt her. X-rays proved there was no serious trouble, but just mucous colitis.

"Then I began to read about wheat germ in your column. I procured a supply and began eating two heaping tablespoons, chewing it all up before every meal, and two heaping tablespoons before going to bed. I believe I must get about four ounces daily this way."

"In a short time I was cured of all colitis trouble. You may be sure I have continued eating the wheat germ every day the year around, and I am everlastingly grateful to you for teaching me about its value. For the benefit of those who claim one can't eat so much wheat germ let me say that I find taking this neither disagreeable nor too filling. In fact I enjoy it. It keeps me from stuffing on rich foods that are not so good for me, and keeps my weight normal. Altogether it seems to have none but good effects on my general health and digestion. I can't eat bran and other rough foods, but wheat germ never gives me any trouble. It keeps me regular, and prevents flatulence and pain."

The germ or embryo of wheat is the small portion near one end of the wheat kernel from which wheat sprouts or germinates or grows. The germ part constitutes about 5 per cent of the whole kernel. In the milling of wheat to produce refined white flour all of the germ portion, along with the outer coats of the kernel, the bran, is removed—it goes into "middlings" to be used chiefly as feed for fowl and animals.

Any miller who cares to bother can catch out a few pounds of fresh wheat germ.

Republicans who have been engaged in the fund raising work indicate that the party will not lack means this year. In some counties where campaign work in previous years had to be underwritten by state headquarters local collectors now report collections exceeding their budgets. Assisting the drive now underway is a special representative of national headquarters, which gets a slice of all local collections.

It is worthy of note that the confusion and duplication which have traditionally been characteristic of campaign finance drives in Wisconsin politics has this year been eliminated by the Republican party as a part of its recent reorganization program.

In former years it was conceivable that a known contributor to the party chest could expect to be solicited over and over again by various party committees in the state and the localities, by the innumerable candidates for office on the party ticket, and by special voluntary campaign groups working in behalf of various candidates.

As far as it is possible this year the funds will be raised by a single group, the executive committee's finance committee, and disbursed by the same group.

A county budget quota system has been set up for every county, and a corresponding collection quota has been set up for every county and locality.

Henry Ford celebrated his sixty-seventh birthday that day with his two closest cronies—Thomas A. Edison and Harvey W. Firestone.

As the world's largest dirigible forged across the Atlantic that day, workmen had passed the halfway mark in the construction of a United States airship, the Akron, which was larger even than the British R-100. The Akron was to be 785 feet long compared to the R-100 which was 709 feet long.

United States treasury department architects had started work on sketches for Appleton's new $260,000 post office building.

The local rear guard actions which the Russians had been fighting to cover their retreat from the Vistula line had almost achieved their purpose. The German efforts to secure a rushing victory had failed.

A London dispatch said: "That the United States would not waste time in preparing its military equipment for emergencies was clearly indicated when President Wilson signed commissions of the 160 West Pointers graduated the previous June. Ordinarily the commissions would have awaited the president's return to Washington."

New Deal Plays Favorites in Tobacco Case

One Large Company Omitted From List of Defendants—Lawrence

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—What the department of justice has done in the criminal proceedings just filed against 26 tobacco companies and their executives becomes rather startling as details are revealed concerning the contents of the document filed in court.

First of all, it appears that unlike most of the other criminal cases filed under the Sherman Anti-Trust law, this one was never submitted to any grand jury, but Lawrence advantage was taken of the alternative method of filing an "information" which avoids the necessity of going before a grand jury. The effect is the same as an indictment and the public accusation is as far-reaching.

Second, it appears now that one of the companies which has reached a commanding position in the tobacco industry as well as its executives has been omitted from the list prosecuted. This corporation has managed in the last few years to become one of the leaders in the industry and has participated in the same marketing conditions which are complained of against the other companies. Why was this company omitted from the list?

Third, although prosecution was begun against many companies with virtually all their officers listed as defendants, there is one instance in which a prominent New Dealer who is a conspicuous officer of one of the companies prosecuted has been omitted from the list. Maybe it was an oversight.

Government Tax

Fourth, the document filed in court complains that the tobacco-growing farmer doesn't get enough income out of the gross revenue derived from tobacco's products, but nothing is said about the fact that the government collects five to six times as much revenue as goes to the farmer and far more than is paid to the growers, the laborers, the manufacturers, the jobbers and the distributors combined.

If the New Deal is really interested in raising the income of the tobacco farmer, there is a simple and quick way to do it and that is to make a drastic cut in the federal tax rates. On every 15-cent package of cigarettes, the government taxes six and a half cents. Likewise on every 10-cent package, the government collects six and a half cents. If tax rates were lowered, the government would collect more total revenue because more packages would be sold due to lower prices.

For some time the makers of the 10-cent cigarette have been trying to persuade congress to impose a graduated tax based on selling price, but the house ways and means committee has always rejected the proposal as in the long run hazardous to the income of the farmers.

Having failed to get a virtual subsidy for the cheaper cigarette in that direction, it would appear that these interests have persuaded the department of justice to become a part of the internal war in the tobacco industry, taking sides with those who stand to profit by a breaking down of some of the leaders in the industry.

What seems to be particularly objected to by the department of justice is the fact that some of the leading tobacco companies have been successful in their legitimate sales methods. The department says:

Advertising

"Said defendants have by extensive and continuous nation-wide advertising and by various sales promotion schemes created and maintained such public acceptance and demand for their major brands that the offering of such products for sale being a necessary adjunct to the conduct of numerous wholesale, retail and service establishments, such establishments are forced to handle the products of defendants and others even on unreasonable and arbitrary terms, and at such prices."

In other words, the widespread publicity given the various brands of cigarettes so that public demand may be created is looked upon with disfavor by the department. This is not new. Last year the spokesman for the administration who is in charge of anti-trust matters publicly declared it a mistake for large companies to use their capital to secure a dominant position by advertising when, he said, everybody knew there wasn't any basic difference between brands anyway.

This direct attack on advertising has alienated many persons from President Roosevelt's administration, first, because it is a blow aimed at large-scale salesmanship without which large volume of sales could not possibly have been attained and, second, because it is transparently an artificial and inconsistent position.

contribution for the 1940 campaign books.

Small wonder that the average business man doesn't consider the New Deal is fair, but believes instead with considerable foundation today that the old motto of "equal justice for all" has been abandoned by the law enforcement agency of the United States government in order that it may play favorites as between groups and classes and business competitors.

Commercial ice cream production in the U. S. last year was estimated at 290,000,000 gallons.

Out-of-Town Visitors are Country Club Party Guests

New faces are giving variety to country club parties these days, as there is hardly a luncheon, dinner or dance that does not have in its guest list one or more out-of-town visitors. Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Brooks, Phoenix, Ariz., were in the party of 34 that Mrs. T. M. Gilbert, Sr., Neenah, entertained at luncheon yesterday at North Shore Golf club.

Visitors from away were also among the 50 women who attended the weekly ladies' day luncheon and bridge Tuesday at Riverview Country club. They included Mrs. Walter Ladwig, Columbia, Mo., and Miss Helen Reilly, Milwaukee, mother and aunt of Mrs. Hayward Buggers, Menasha, and Miss Cecelia Werner, Ithaca, N. Y., who is spending her vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Werner, Appleton. Honors at the afternoon's bridge went to two Appleton women, Mrs. William Van Nortwick and Mrs. J. E. Thomas.

Some of the out-of-town guests at the junior dance Monday night at Riverview Country club were Miss Margaret Collinge, East Lansing, Mich., who is visiting at the home of Mrs. Peter Klumb, 913 W. Fifth street; Miss Mary Lou Courtney, Washington, D. C., house guest of Mrs. R. F. Shepherd, 1000 E. Pacific street; Miss Patty Ladwig, Milwaukee, who has been visiting with Miss Betty Moore, E. Eldorado street; John Messenger, Green Bay; and Emmett Murphy, Scarsdale, N. Y., a guest at the J. Leche Sensenbrenner home at Neenah.

Mrs. Ted Lang entertained yesterday afternoon at her home, 714 N. State street, in honor of Mrs. Mary Kellner, Chicago. Cards and dice were played, the prizes going to Mrs. Robert M. Connolly at bridge; Mrs. Mae Krueger of Schaumburg; and Mrs. Mary Kellner at dice.

Appleton Girl Scouts are Moving to New Quarters in College Avenue Building

Appleton Girl Scouts will have a new home and headquarters beginning tomorrow, namely rooms in the College Avenue building of the Wisconsin Power company, 112 E. College Avenue. A lease on the two front rooms on the third floor of the building has been given to Appleton Girl Scout council by the power company.

The rooms will consist of a large office, 17 by 20 feet, which will be used by both the local director, Miss Dorothy Petron, and the secretary, Miss Carla Naber. It will house the filing case and all office equipment, records and supplies. The room is equipped with a skylight which makes it light and airy.

The Scout room at the front of the building has three large windows overlooking College Avenue. It is 17 by 32 feet and will be used for council meetings, training courses, conferences and entertaining. An alcove at the end of the room will provide kitchenette space as well as adequate cupboard space for the scouts' silver and dishes recently bought by the council, and this will be used for after-sleigh parties and skating suppers or other simple entertaining by the organization.

A rest room is included in the rooms leased and a second one will be available by permission for mixed parties. The Power company also has offered the use of the large E. M. B. A. room when it is not in use, for occasions when the Scout room is not large enough. This room is 17 by 60 feet with windows along the east side and at the north end. There is a stage at the south end, and the floor which is marked for shuffleboard can be used for many other games and activities by Scouts and adults.

House Committee

On the house committee of the Girl Scout council which will supervise the establishment of the new home are Mrs. E. C. Hilbert, Mrs. Clyde Cavert and Mrs. M. T. Ray.

For the last two years the Scout House has been at 113 W. Harris street in the building owned by Appleton Woman's club. It housed the central office and was the scene of parties, suppers and get-togethers for the scouts, training courses for leaders, meetings, teas and suppers for the adult membership.

The new office will be open from 9 to 12 o'clock each morning from Monday through Saturday, and also from 1:30 to 5 o'clock Friday afternoon until Aug. 16 when the day camps close. Thereafter the office will be open both morning and afternoon every day except Saturday when it will close at noon.

Open House Will Mark Anniversary

In celebration of the nineteenth birthday anniversary of Mrs. E. M. Reynolds, mother of Mrs. W. R. Chaffner with whom she makes her home part of each year, open house will be held Sunday afternoon and evening at the home of another daughter, Mrs. H. S. Garber, 111 High street, Oshkosh. Appleton friends of Mrs. Reynolds have been invited to call on her at Oshkosh between 2:30 and 4:30 Sunday afternoon and 7 and 9 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mrs. Chaffner who has been spending the summer in Springfield, Mass., is in Appleton for a few days and will be at Oshkosh Sunday for the celebration. Other guests are expected from Milwaukee, Pardeeville, Racine, Madison and Appleton.

Army Building Is Suggested For Appleton

WPA Proposes New Structure to House Motorized Equipment

A motorized equipment storage building for Appleton is one of the 15 Wisconsin projects which have been recommended to Washington for inclusion in the national defense program, according to Mark Muth, state WPA administrator.

The plans include new national guard airport facilities as well as armory and military equipment storage buildings. Projects are in a tentative state and estimates of the cost are not available. They must be approved by the secretary of war or navy and require the allocation of special defense funds available to Colonel F. C. Harrington, commissioner of works project.

Adjutant General Ralph M. Immel, through whom the plans were suggested, was in Washington this week to present an oral appeal in support of the applicants. Muth said most of the jobs could be rushed to completion this year.

Among the larger projects suggested is the enlargement of the present Madison airport to develop a national guard air squadron; a new armory building and sea plane base and new hangars at Milwaukee; a new wing to the present national guard armory at Whitefish Bay; construction of a 3-unit guard building at Sheboygan; and a new armory building at Platteville.

Chicago Girl Drowns In Wisconsin River

Mauston, Wis. — (P) — Margaret Resler, 13, drowned yesterday when she stepped into a deep hole while wading in the swift waters of the Wisconsin river five miles northeast of Lyndon station.

Joseph Pinzer, of Milwaukee, vainly attempted to rescue the girl, whose body was not recovered immediately.

Margaret was the daughter of Richard Resler of Chicago, who owns a farm near Lyndon station.

Farmhouse Grows Into Big Hospital of National Fame

Milton, W. Va. — (P) — A little hospital founded some 12 years ago in a hilltop farmhouse in southwestern West Virginia is growing up.

And the story of its gradual transformation from a makeshift nursing home for convalescent infantile paralysis victims into a big modern orthopedic hospital of national fame is almost as exciting as the cures worked within its walls.

The W. T. Morris Memorial hospital for crippled children is the result of an unusual combination of medical ability, public enterprise, community spirit and considerable help from the state and federal governments.

Upward of 1,000 children, many of them "hopeless" cases from almost every state, have been treated in the past 10 years. Most of them were carried in all but a handful have waded out.

The hospital is a community enterprise. It is owned by the town of Milton and is operated by a state-wide non-profit association. A board of distinguished names, manages its affairs.

None except a handful of permanent employees receives any pay. There are no profits and no losses. It is a completely self-sustaining, debt-free enterprise, except for an extended building program now going on. That's where the state and federal governments come in.

Play Key Roles

Two men, one a physician, the other an elderly bachelor-farmer, played key roles in this story of a farmhouse which became a $750,000 hospital plant.

The first, Dr. Arthur Shade Jones, a North Carolina born university of Virginia graduate, came to Huntington, W. Va., 20 years ago. There he established a small private hospital and started the first free clinic for crippled children in the state.

He built up a lucrative private practice, which he still maintains, but from the first he devoted a large share of his time to charity work. After a time interested friends helped him move his clinic from a room in the city hall to an old remodeled residence.

Some eight years later Walter T. Morris, a kindly old farmer who lived alone near Milton and drove to town on Saturday in a horse-drawn buggy, became interested in the crippled children's clinic when a young relative was stricken with paralysis.

When the child recovered he turned over the deed to his 200-acre farm, the farmhouse, and his life savings, some $2,000 in bank stock, to the physician.

"It's all yours, look, stock and barrel," he said. "I want you to use it to help other children just like you helped ours."

Dr. Jones, his friends and the villagers of Milton started to re-model the old farmhouse. Lumber and brick were salvaged from homes razed to make way for filling stations. Clubwomen, churchmen and civic workers donated their time. Merchants dug down for a few hundred dollars to keep things going.

See Patients Progress

Morris died in 1930, but he lived to see most of the first handful of patients come out well and strong—able to walk and work.

A state association was formed. Dr. Jones, who has treated nearly 17,000 crippled children, outlined an ambitious building program which

British Say Troops Moved Without Loss By 'Enemy Action'

London — (P) — Authoritative sources said today that not a ship has been sunk nor a life lost through "enemy action" in the large-scale troop movements between parts of the British empire since the start of the war. Giant liners and small vessels have been used.

Among troop movements conducted successfully under protection of the navy, they said, were Canadians to Britain, Iceland, the Windward Islands; Newfoundlanders to Britain; Australians and New Zealanders to the middle east, Britain; South Africans to East Africa, Egypt; Indians to East Africa, Egypt, Britain, the gold coast in West Africa; Nigerians to East Africa and Palestine, and Cypriots (from Cyprus) to Britain.

Weather Hurts Midwest Crops

Hot, Dry Conditions Cause New Damage to Fields, Bureau Says

Washington — (P) — Dry weather of the past week has caused new damage to growing crops and pastures in portions of the midwestern corn belt, the central great plains and rocky mountain areas.

Reporting this today, the weather bureau said damage to the tassel corn crop was heaviest in Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota and locally in Iowa and sections of the Ohio river valley. Pastures were reported to be drying badly in the central great plains, making withdrawal of livestock necessary in some areas.

Minimum temperatures throughout the mid-western farm belt were reported above 100 degrees every day last week in many localities with 116 degrees recorded at two weather bureau stations in South Dakota last Wednesday.

The bureau said that in the Ohio valley corn made fair to good progress quite generally early last week, but the advent of hot-dry weather toward the close was unfavorable, and as a consequence the crop showed considerable deterioration. The bureau said there were many reports of corn tassels being burned white in the dry areas.

TAME MINK—A rarity in the animal kingdom is a tame mink, one that can be handled freely by humans as is being done by Patricia Wilz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilz, route 1, Menasha. The mink is nine weeks old and was one of a litter of 10 born on the Wilz mink farm. It was fed on goat's milk and now eats horse meat and fish. The picture was taken at the monthly pig fair last Saturday on the city fairgrounds. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Army Flying Cadets Have Language All Their Own

BY DEVON FRANCIS

Randolph Field, Texas — (P) — You probably will be hearing a lot of this in the next few months as the army air corps drives for more and more pilots; so you may as well get acquainted now with flying cadet slang.

Homing device—A furlough or leave of absence.

Spin in—Go to bed, or take a nap.

Country club—Randolph field, the air training center.

Roll up your flaps—Stop talking.

Sugar report—A letter from the girl friend back home.

Taxi up—Come here.

Raunchy—A description of anything in bad shape.

Take off—Leave.

Washout—Be eliminated from flight training.

Washington machine—The state commander's plane.

Biscuit run—An imaginary appliance which is said to be rolled out on the flying field to shoot biscuits and other food up to a flying cadet who has made an approach to the field and has "overshot."

Gig—A demerit.

Gig-Getter—A rifle which, in spite of effort and energy spent on it, fails to pass inspection.

Bunk-flying—Talking aviation in barracks.

Drive it in the hangar—Let's stop bunk-flying.

Gun the potatoes—Replenish the potato dish at mess.

In a storm—In an excited state of mind.

Dodo—A lower-classman before he solos.

Six and 20 too—Any bit of young, enticing femininity who is responsible for a cadet's returning late from a weekend leave. It means six demerits and 20 hours in the "bull ring" with a rifle.

H. P. — Hot pilot.

Bird-dogging—A dance by a lower-classman with an upper-classman's girl.

Pushbutton pilot—A student who received his primary instruction in a relatively easy plane to fly.

Claim 1,270,000 Tons British Shipping Sunk

Berlin — (P) — Authorized German spokesmen said today that German sailors and fliers, making up only a part of Germany's armed might, have sent to the bottom of the English channel and other seas 1,270,000 tons of British shipping since June 25.

Spokesmen said these figures should quiet any suspicions abroad that Germany is carrying on the war half-heartedly.

Thursday Last Day to Pay Tax Installments

Thursday will be the last day for taxpayers to pay the second and final installments on real estate and personal property taxes extended from March, according to Joseph A. Kox, city treasurer. Kox's office was busy today receiving second half installments.

It Is Said ---

While city officials talk about what type of swimming pool to build in Appleton for next year the highway to Neenah is crowded with Appleton youngsters who want to swim this year. Bicycles and thumbing rides are the chief mode of transportation.

That C. C. Bailey, boys' secretary at the Appleton Y. M. C. A., Sept. 6 will observe his 25th year in boys' work.

That the wheat crop on about five acres of land at the Theodore Haltinger farm, route 1, Hilbert, has come in so heavy that in cutting it, Haltinger used 30 pounds of binder twine, or an average of 6 pounds per acre. The average is 2 1/2 pounds per acre.

Various land objectives in Belgium and Holland also were attacked, the ministry declared.

The ministry said the known destruction of 240 planes involved a loss to Germany of "at least 600 officers and men killed or taken prisoner."

Welles Says Convoy For Windsors Would Violate Neutrality

Washington — (P) — Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, said today that British conveying of the American steamer Excalibur when it brings the duke and duchess of Windsor to this hemisphere would be a violation of United States neutrality and an inconceivable action.

The New York World-Telegram says it learned from close friends of the duchess of Windsor that she had reserved rooms at a small private hospital here for a plastic surgery operation Sept. 9.

The duke and duchess of Windsor are expected there soon en route to the duke's new post as governor of the Bahamas Islands.

Both the doctor and the hospital mentioned by the newspaper declined comment on the report.

Heat Deaths at 858 in Country

They included 448 heat deaths and 410 drownings.

Violent thunderstorms struck the New England coast last night, cutting 22 degrees off temperatures which had reached 94.6 earlier in the day at Boston. Winds up to 45 miles an hour uprooted hundreds of trees, unroofed houses and barns and leveled power and communication lines.

Lightning caused dozens of fires in New England. Wind and rain flattened a Goodyear blimp at Quincy, Mass., and $8,000 worth of helium escaped.

Lake Michigan breezes routed stifling heat in the lakeshore regions of Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana.

The coolest weather in nearly two weeks prevailed in Appleton today, the thermometer reading 78 at 1:30 this afternoon in contrast to the 80's and 90's that have singled the city and vicinity lately.

The maximum for the 24-hour period ended at 9 o'clock this morning was 87, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and the minimum was 63 at 4 o'clock this morning, according to the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

Scattered thundershowers, with warmer temperatures, is the forecast for the state tonight and tomorrow.

semblyman; George C. Egan, Kaukauna, Progressive; and Harry H. Jack, Appleton, Progressive.

All county office holders, except two are seeking reelection and each has opposition. Meyer, Appleton; Walter Scherck, Appleton; Joseph W. Verstegen, Little Chute; Chet W. Heinritz, Appleton; George A. Brautigam, Appleton; Robert O. Smith, Grand Chute; Progressives — Frank J. Hilgenberg, Kaukauna; and Fred F. Wankey, Appleton; Democrats — Theodore H. Loose, Appleton; John J. Kelly, Kaukauna; and Frank Van-Den Hoogen, Kimberly.

Candidates for treasurer are Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Republican, incumbent; Ray L. Feuerstein, Grand Chute, Republican; Warren P. Smith, Appleton, Progressive; and John T. Timmers, route 3, Appleton, Democrat.

Clerk of Courts

Sydney M. Shannon, Appleton, Republican, is opposed for reelection as clerk of courts by Simon E. O'Connell, Appleton, Progressive.

In the race for register of deeds are Stephen M. Peeters, Little Chute, Republican, incumbent; John Burke, Appleton, Progressive; Wilbert L. Brick, Black Creek, Democrat; and Arthur L. Collar, Hortonville, Democrat.

The fight for district attorney has attracted five Republican candidates and a Progressive. The Republicans are Raymond P. Dohr, Appleton, incumbent; Adrian E. Gerrits, Appleton; William L. Crow, Appleton; Oscar J. Schmiege, Appleton; Abram J. Cohen is the Progressive candidate for the office.

Dr. Herbert E. Ellsworth, Appleton, incumbent, and Willard Van Handel, Little Chute, are the Republican candidates for coroner. Others seeking the office are Robert J. Gmeiner, Appleton, Progressive, and Legard T. Feavel, Appleton, Democrat.

Assembly Candidates

Mark S. Catlin, Jr., Appleton, incumbent, and Rolland A. Kueck, Appleton, are the Republican candidates for the assembly from the First district. Lawrence F. McGillan, Appleton, is the Progressive candidate for the office, and Louis Bonini, Appleton, the Democratic candidate for the office.

The race for the assembly post from the Second district has drawn more candidates than that in the First district because William Gantter, Kaukauna, is not seeking reelection but has become a candidate for state senator. Seeking the open post are: Republicans — Gustave E. Hanges, Kimberly; Lloyd Lang, Kimberly; Arthur Zwick, Seymour; and George L. Smith, Kaukauna; Progressives — Arthur J. Hoodhan, Kaukauna, and John E. Sieber, Bear Creek; Democrats — William M. Rohan, route 3, Kaukauna, and Leo H. Schmalz, Kaukauna.

Two candidates are out for surveyor, Robert M. Connolly, Appleton, Democrat, incumbent, and Clem Antonetti, Appleton, Progressive.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMANN

Havana and the Battle of Britain

The measures agreed upon at Havana derive their whole significance from the struggle between Great Britain and the Nazi domination of Continental Europe. But for the possibility that Hitler may conquer Britain, break the British blockade, achieve something very like naval supremacy in the Atlantic Ocean, and incorporate British industry, shipping, foreign investments and finance into the totalitarian system, the problems discussed at Havana would not exist.

As long as the British are in control of the Atlantic Ocean, even though our own Navy is in the Pacific, nothing serious can happen in the French, Dutch or Danish possessions in this hemisphere. As long as the totalitarian states are confined to Continental Europe, no invasion of this hemisphere is conceivable, no bases can be seized in Greenland, in the Azores, in the Cape Verde Islands, and on the West Coast of Africa, which would serve as stepping stones to the domination of any part of this hemisphere. No uprising of a Fifth Column anywhere is to be feared because the forces available in this hemisphere would be sufficient to suppress it.

As long as Britain continues to blockade the Continent there is no problem of how competing producers are to do business on equal terms with a totalitarian monopoly. But if Britain falls, there will disappear the last free market outside of the Americas; there will remain only the regimented market in what is left of Europe, and access to this market through the machinery of buying, paying, shipping will be under control of Berlin. A large part of this hemisphere, especially the great South American nations of the Temperate Zone, would then become economically dependent upon the European monopoly with which they would have to carry on three-quarters of their trade; and in a military sense, they would at once be vulnerable to internal revolution and external pressure. For the Atlantic Ocean, particularly their part of it, would be commanded by the Axis.

Under Nazis Would Face New System

It would then be a serious question whether they could maintain the independence which they have enjoyed in the century which followed the British naval victory at Trafalgar and the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo. They would be faced with the imminent prospect of being reduced once more, like the Balkan nations of Europe, to the status of colonies and protectorates.

If, as the result of the conquest of Britain, the command of the Atlantic Ocean is lost to the American nations, the consequence will not be the mere substitution of a German Empire for the British Empire. The German Empire is avowedly and, wherever it is established, efficiently carrying out the greatest social revolution of modern times. It is the Imperial Socialist revolution in which the whole regime of private property, contract, free labor is being liquidated into a gigantic, Continental, regimented, monopolistic Socialism. It is with this new revolutionary regime that the nations of this hemisphere will then have to live and do business. They will be compelled to choose whether to be incorporated into it, which means a revolution within each of them, or to organize in order to withstand it, which means a radical reorganization of their own internal economies.

Battle of Britain to Determine Need of Army

The battles around Great Britain and around Gibraltar will decide whether the independence of the nations of this hemisphere can be defended in the future as it has been in the past—by sea power. If the battles are lost, only those regions can now be defended by the United States where it can now land an army and base an air force. The battle of Britain will, therefore, decide whether the United States must maintain permanently a very large army, and whether American industry must be regimented permanently on military lines. For if once the British fleet is lost, and the shipbuilding facilities of all of Europe are under totalitarian management, there is little prospect of our being able to achieve even parity, much less mastery, in the Atlantic Ocean. We shall, therefore, be driven to maintaining a great army because we shall no longer be a sufficiently strong naval power.

This in itself, the need to raise and equip a great army, will compel us to conscript men and to regiment our economic life.

But the battle of Britain will decide also whether this transformation within the United States is to be temporary or permanent. If the British prevail, and the Hitlerian empire falls, we shall be able to return to the essentials, though probably never again to all the incidentals, of a free economy. But if the war is lost in Europe, and therefore also in Africa, in Asia, and in most of South America, we shall be isolated in the region from Canada to Panama amidst totalitarian empires which control most of the highways, almost all the shipping, most of the industry, and all the external markets of the world. We shall, of course, survive. But the inexorable price of our own survival will be the radical reorganization and the planned direction of our own system of production and our own methods of doing business.

Decisions May Fit Stalemate Situation

For private competitive trading and unplanned investing based on estimates of private profit in a free market will produce neither the armaments we shall need if we are isolated, nor will they give us the equality of bargaining power needed to do business with, and yet not be exploited by, the gigantic Continental monopolies of Europe and Asia.

Such success as has been had at Havana is due to the fact that the governments realize, even if many of their peoples have not yet realized, that if the battle of Britain is lost there will be lost at once not only the existing base of the security of the American nations, but that there will be inaugurated a social revolution which will overturn every regime that is not well prepared and grimly determined to resist.

In fact, of course, no agreements that could have been reached at Havana would be sufficient to protect the independence of this hemisphere if Britain is destroyed. That must have been obvious to any one at Havana; if the great catastrophe should take place, the measures of self-defense required will surpass anything now under consideration. What apparently is being done at Havana is to prepare the ground, not for action in case Britain is totally lost but for the situation which may very well exist in the near future, where terrific blows have been struck but no decision has been reached. It is in such a situation, with the blockade and counter-blockade both in effect but neither conclusive, with the whole world situation in great confusion, that the decision apparently taken at Havana will matter that the French and Dutch possessions should not be used as bases of operation, that Fifth Column uprisings should not get out of hand, and that economic necessity, due to the piling up of surpluses, should not drive many American nations into the position of having to submit to Hitler by becoming his allies.

Girl Dies at Kimberly After Week's Illness

Kimberly—Marie Werts, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Werts, 138 Birch street, died at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon at her home after a week's illness. Survivors are the parents and a sister, Johanna.

If on these interim problems the conference has agreed on measures as effective as possible with the means at our disposal, it will have done good work.

Johnson Sees Urgent Need Of Selective Service Law

Editor's note: The daily column by General Hugh S. Johnson is being substituted for Raymond Clapper's column while Mr. Clapper is on vacation.

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, D. C.—Can democracy prepare for war or carry it on well and quickly enough to compete with the total powers of a dictator?

We had better think fast on that one. One of the "explanations" now seeping back from abroad about the incredible French collapse is that because French political leaders thought that the answer to that question is "no," they pushed their country into that whirlpool of destruction—knowing she was both unwilling and unready. Their argument was something like this: "Our people are not ready and not willing to make the extreme effort and sacrifice to get ready. They must be brought to that willingness. It can't be done with France at peace. Only under pressure of war can we get dictatorial powers and a popular acceptance of them, which are absolutely necessary both to get ready and to fight. Behind our present defense, we believe we can hold Hitler back long enough to do both."

Johnson

It is not true that democracies can't cope with dictators. I sat in the center of things in 1917 and 1918 and saw this democracy prove that it is not true—prove it on all three fronts—industrial, manpower and on the battlefield.

But to beat dictators, democracies have got to show the power to see as clearly and efficiently and be as willing to serve and sacrifice any difference of opinion about just

A case in point is the new selective service bill. Fully 90 per cent know that it means a very large of our people are ardently in favor of navy, a great increase in our army, large reserves of trained men and mountains of new equipment. I have heard few people who were unwilling to accept the judgment of our military and naval experts as to type, numbers and quantities needed.

Thus far, therefore, democracy is working for defense as well as any form of government can work. But when it goes to conscriptive methods for raising that army, the welkin rings with every sort of confusion of counsel that defeats democracy or drives it to dictatorship.

Can't Take Chance On Volunteer Campaign

There are several provisions of the service bill that I think I can prove wrong in principle, but in the main the bill is necessary and sufficient. Failure to enact it promptly may lead to something much worse.

One objection is that we can rely on volunteering to get more than a million men. Both the World war and our Civil war prove that to be highly doubtful. We can't take chances. Even if with ballyhoo and blackmail we could do it that way, it would take too long. Furthermore, in our present need for skilled men in industry and the minimum of domestic disruption, it would dangerously handicap our economic effort. Finally, that method is grossly unfair with no provision at all to distribute burdens equally and where they can best be borne.

The other principal objection is that it is an un-American, undemo-

Grants New Trial in $11,000 Damage Case

Ruling on motions after verdict, Circuit Judge Joseph R. McCarthy has awarded the defendant a new trial in the damage suit in which Roland Choudoir, 208 N. Story street, last April was awarded $11,558.08 from Mrs. Wilmer Gruett, 900 N. Morrison street, and the Home Mutual Casualty company, Judge McCarthy ruled that the jury's findings were inconsistent. Choudoir was injured in an accident involving his motorcycle and a car driven by Mrs. Gruett at the intersection of Superior and Spring streets.

eratic device of dictatorship invented by Napoleon. On one form or another, it is as old as the Hebrew exodus, and was implicit in the earliest Saxon laws and in feudalism. Thus, we inherited it from both religious and racial antiquity and wrote our constitutional liability to service into our constitutional law. So did the French revolution before Napoleon rose. The two revolutionary democracies regarded it as an essential part of their new doctrine that democracy itself is universal equality or obligation as well as opportunity. Thus, for every reason of efficiency, necessity, traditional and constitutional democracy and national defense, a proper selective service bill should pass at once.

Map Plans for 'Bagoland Day' At State Fair

Outstanding Citizens Of Area to be Honored In Grandstand Program

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh — Representatives from Winnebago and Fond du Lac counties gathered at the office of the Oshkosh Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night and drew up a tentative program for Winnebago Day Aug. 22 at the Wisconsin State fair. A third county, Outagamie, although included in the area was not represented.

State fair officials recently informed Winnebago and Fond du Lac that Thursday Aug. 22, has been set aside as Winnebago Day to honor this section of the state.

According to W. J. Reynolds, of the state department of agriculture, who was sent to Oshkosh to assist in the formation of the program, a special booth has been reserved in which products of Winnebago may be sold and displayed.

The program, as set up tentatively by the representative citizens Tuesday night follows: Morning, registration at Winnebago land booth in the government building, organized tours through the fair grounds visiting outstanding exhibits and activities, band concerts and parades by Winnebago bands and marching units; afternoon, mayors of Winnebago and Fond du Lac, before the grandstand, AAA Auto races heading the fair entertainment for Thursday; evening, 50 of the outstanding citizens of Winnebago will be honored before the grandstand. Special fireworks displays to further honor citizens and people in this area, Winnebago Day Ball to end the day.

A special committee, chosen to select the 50 outstanding men in Winnebago that will represent this area at the fair, was announced Tuesday night as: Elmer Radtke, secretary of the Neenah Chamber of Commerce; E. G. Sonnenberg, Neenah; C. R. Fiss, Oshkosh; Mayor George Oakes, Oshkosh; J. T. Putney, Oshkosh; and Mayor Neal Prommen, Fond du Lac.

Although the selection committee is the only committee that has been completely formed, others are in the process of being named by the directors of Winnebago and the men already chosen have begun work on their various projects. Committees on bands, fireworks, transportation, booth display and publicity are being formed and will be announced later in the week, according to J. B. Cudlip, secretary of the Oshkosh Chamber of Commerce.

The committee on fireworks announced that as a feature of the fireworks display, an outlined map of Winnebago, with the slogan "Work and Play in Winnebago" written above it will be shown Thursday night.

It was also announced that the Modernistic ballroom at Milwaukee will be turned over to citizens of Winnebago and a special dance will be held. Admission is free to citizens of the areas included in Winnebago Day.

Tickets will be distributed by business men.

Mayor Oakes and Mayor Prommen said they plan to proclaim Thursday, Aug. 22, as Winnebago Day and will urge citizens of their cities to attend the fair. Mr. Reynolds said at the meeting that other mayors of cities in Winnebago have stated their intentions of proclaiming Aug. 22 as Winnebago Day.

Garbage Plant To be Studied

Twin City Sewerage Commission Is Told To Investigate Plan

Neenah — The Neenah-Menasha sewerage commission was authorized at a meeting last night at the plant to investigate the feasibility of converting a portion of the sewerage disposal plant into a garbage disposal plant.

It was pointed out at the meeting, which was attended by members of the commission, members of the finance committee of the Neenah council and health committee of the Menasha council, Mayors Edwin A. Kalfahs, Neenah, and William Jensen, Menasha, and City Clerk H. S. Zemlock, that it will have to be determined if it is mechanically possible to join the two disposal systems.

It may be necessary, it was explained, to hire an engineer to make a survey of the plant setup to determine whether the plant's capacity is sufficient to handle both sewerage and garbage. The cost of the proposed plan in proportion to the cost of constructing an incinerator also will have to be determined.

Rankings of Big Cities Scrambled

Washington—(AP)—Census counters scrambled population standings of America's big cities today to create a "biggest" list for 1940.

Thirteen of the largest have different ranks than 10 years ago. In line with forecasts that rural territories, especially suburban areas, were gaining at the expense of big cities, six of the first 15 showed losses—Philadelphia, Cleveland, St. Louis, Boston, Pittsburgh and San Francisco.

Preliminary figures — complete except for transients and other minor factors not likely to change standings—gave the top 15 places to these cities:

1940 city	1930 pop.	1940 pop.	1930 pop.
1 New York	2,380,259	3,350,445	2,380,259

The department said each squadron would consist of 31 officers, 115 enlisted men, and 14 airplanes with photographic, radio, and armament equipment.

They Liked Europe Better but How They Scuttle for Home Now

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—The passenger lists of the clippers and boats these last few months, and especially since the Nazis broke through, have shown the true character of many rich Americans who loved the French and English so when peace was on and, in those days, came back to the U. S. A. only to bury their dead, see their lawyers and confirm their conviction that their native land wasn't fit for the likes of them to live in.

The perils and privations of war have driven back many wrinkled hulks who suddenly discovered, after decades of expatriate life, an overwhelming love for the land which, to them, was just a source of income and whose people were fit only to be despised as vulgar tourists.

They "understood" the French and English, who, likewise, appreciated them not least because they were receiving money from the toil of American workers. They were a curious, stateless monstrosity without loyalty for their own country or affection for their own people, and the truth to tell, without the respect of those whose approval they tried to buy.

Now, however, when the French and English would seem to stand most in need of that understanding friendship which they professed, swarms of them have been struggling home, drawn by a sudden and irresistible nostalgia for a crude country where the Nazis are, yet and the siren's shriek at night means only that engine 6 is rolling down to douse a burning cigaret on an awning up the street.

It is, indeed, odd that the Riviera has suddenly lost its charm. Odd, too, it is that dear Paris and those quaint fishing villages have somehow ceased to enchant the soul of the permanent absentee whose passport was only a means of identification in cashing checks and a license to pester the consuls.

This would seem to be the very time to prove that deep friendship for the people of France and England by sharing their sufferings and dangers, but the fact is, as the French and English always knew, that this type of American lacked all loyalty and lived only for vanity and pleasure.

This war, if it does no other good, will not have been entirely in vain if, as seems probable, it results in the final extinction of an ugly little group of off-Americans who belong to settle in Europe in the first decade of this century and, naturally, found their kindred among the prideless moochers of the bustle or aristocracy.

Scouts on 5-Mile Fire Tower Hike

Gardner Dam — Opening activities for the new camp period at the valley council scout camp Monday were a baseball game and a 5-mile hike. In the opening game of this week's baseball schedule the provisional troop team captained by Tom Van Housen defeated the Kimberly troop 19 team by a score of 3 to 2. Don Garrigan, Menasha, drove in the winning run for the victors.

A large group of campers headed by Ray Thomas, Don Hoks and Clarence DeBruin went on the hike to the fire tower. Half the group hiked to the tower, and the others took horses to the tower by another route. Boys hiking to the tower then took the horses back to camp while the other hikers walked back.

Boys on the hike were Bill Hoyman, Jack Courchane, Billy Tornew, Eugene Schellhout, Raymond Fosterling, Herb Kleeman, Dick Bennett, Everett Mathison, John Nixon, Louis Wyngaard, Bill Van Sambeck, Tony Van Hout, Jim Busch, Pete Van Beek, Fred Olson, Augustine Kneepkins, Eddie Thein, John Van Drunen, Joe Kortenhof, John Hanges and Cortland Burby, Eagle River.

MacDonald Is Named To Willkie Committee

Milwaukee—(AP)—J. R. MacDonald, of Black River Falls, was named late yesterday to represent county chairmen on the newly formed state finance committee which will control expenditures of the Willkie campaign fund in Wisconsin.

Appointment of MacDonald completes the committee personnel of the finance committee, Edward A. Bacon, Milwaukee, Republican national committeeman, said.

Bacon invited the county chairmen's association to name its representative on the body after Dr. F. L. Gullickson, state party chairman, declined to "participate" in the committee activities.

C. A. Dawson, River Falls, chairman of the county chairmen's association, appointed MacDonald.

Atlas versus Fox River (Postponed).
Wednesday—Chair Company versus APCO.

It took 10 innings, but Coated Paper finally beat Pond Sport, 5-1, in an industrial league game last night. Coated got a run in the first and Pond's a run in the seventh to tie up the count.

As Orin Hurley led off for Coated with an easy roller to Ken Slatery at third, Slatery threw wide of the first sack for a 2-base error. Drexler grounded, advancing Hurley to third. Bob Eggert bunted down the first base line to score Hurley.

Pond's tied the score in the last half of the seventh. With one out, Bud De Leest singled to left and stole second. F. Kirk grounded, with De Leest going to third, Milt Bernger beat out an infield hit to score De Leest and send the game into extra innings.

The Pond team threatened in the eighth. Zimmerman hit a line drive down the left field foul line that looked like a triple. Harold Fredericks made a 1-handed stab of the ball, holding Zimmerman to a single. Bill Besch sent Zimmerman to second with a single, but none of the next three batters was able to bring him in.

Slatery threw wide at first base again in the tenth after picking up Bob Eggert's grounder. Eggert going to second. H. Crowe beat out a hit. Slatery hit into a fielder's choice and Eggert was nailed at the plate. Felzer singled to right to score Crowe. Fredericks got his third hit, scoring Stoffel. D. Hurley singled to score Felzer. De Leest bobbled Diener's grounder. Fredericks scoring. Ponds got two walks in their half, but could not score.

Brews Get Two Homers to Win

Milwaukee—(U)—The Milwaukee Brewers pounded out 12 hits, including two home runs, for a 14 to 2 victory over Louisville in an American association game here yesterday.

Buck Marrow went the route for Milwaukee, holding the Colonels to nine hits to register his third straight victory. He was backed up by faultless support, which included three double plays.

Charles English, with a home run, double and single, led the Milwaukee attack. Wimpy Wilburn also collected a round tripper.

The score by innings:

	R.	H.	E.
Louisville	000	001	001—2
Milwaukee	302	054	008—14

Only two games were played in the association yesterday. The skidding Minneapolis club fell eight and a half games back of first place Kansas City by dropping a 6 to 5 decision in 12 innings to St. Paul. The Millers went ahead in the first of the ninth but Gil English's homer tied the count in St. Paul's half.

SNED SETS ONEIDA RECORD—Slammin' Sammy Sned, shown above taking a ball out of a sand trap, set a new course record at Oneida Golf and Riding club course yesterday as a crowd of almost 1,000 persons followed him around. He was clocked in 34:32—66 and might even have done better with a break or two in his favor. The old record was 67 set by "Red" Leonard, Milwaukee. Sned played with Johnny Revolta against Ben Hogan and Ralph Guldahl. The picture at the top shows part of the crowd standing around the ninth green.

Bruins Now Can Place a Well Seasoned Team on the Diamond

BY BILL WHITE
New York — (U)—That bonus check fat Freddie Fitzsimmons got from the Dodger front office for winning No. 202 was for 500 smackeroos. . . . Coaches of three of last year's bowl teams — Bobby Dodd of Ga. Tech., Frank Leahy of Boston college and Red Dawson of Tulane — gave that Daytona Beach coaching school a triple threat faculty.

Greenberg Upsets Grant in Tourney

Southampton — (U)—Seymour Greenberg started his tennis career as ball boy for his father, who was a pretty good netman around Chicago. Then Seymour grew older and teamed with his dad to win the western father and son doubles title from 1933 to 1938. Now Seymour has reached the age of 19 and he is able to beat "the old man" handily at singles.

But the old man doesn't mind too much because he's in pretty distinguished company. For Seymour also has defeated such prominent players as Hal Surface, George Toloy, and Betsy Grant. His victory over Grant came yesterday in the second round of the 50th annual Meadow club invitation tournament and eased Greenberg into the third round where his opponent will be Frank Kovacs of Oakland, Calif.

His victory over Grant was the only surprise of an otherwise uneventful day that saw all the favorites advance to the round of sixteen.

Milwaukee Netters Win at Junior Meet

Gambier, O., —(U)—Walter Stuckert and Bobby Jake, both of Milwaukee, advanced in the junior division of the Western junior tennis tournament at Kenyon college here yesterday.

Stuckert defeated Byron Cordon of Chicago, 7-5, 6-2, while Jake won from Tom Falkenberg of Hollywood, Calif., 6-2, 6-2.

Ted Peterson of Madison, Wis., defeated Allen Richerson of St. Louis, 6-6, 6-0, 6-4, in a boys' division match.

Still pulling almost every rope, wire and kite string in an effort to get pitching talent to save a floundering cause, the Appleton Papermakers today faced the grim fact that while help may be forthcoming there's no assurance that it will be oil on the troubled waters.

Club officers have had Cleveland and New York Yankee scouts in the corner for the last two days imploring help but all the satisfaction they can get is a promise that "We'll see what we can find."

The fact is that good pitchers are scarce at this stage in the season. A team that's up near the top can't spare a good one and a team near the bottom hasn't any.

Officers of the club announced today that the double bills scheduled with LaCrosse on Thursday and Friday nights have been forgotten. There'll be only one game but Friday night will continue to be observed as ladies night. The double bill for Sunday night with Wisconsin Rapids stands.

Sheboygan—The sad, sad state of the Appleton Papermaker pitching staff was told twice more here last night when the Sheboygan Indians annexed a double bill, 8 to 5, and 16 to 4 in six innings.

The first game saw Appleton out-hit the Indians by a 9 to 8 margin but the hits weren't the kind that produced runs. McIntyre started on the mound for Appleton and did well until the fifth when the Sheboygan club pounded six runs across the rubber. Roy Millmaki and Ray Malewig succeeded him on the mound with Millmaki highly ineffective. The earned run average showed Appleton with five runs and Sheboygan with seven.

In the second game, which went six innings, Appleton took a 16 to 4

9 Teams Enter Softball Meet

Tourney Opens Aug. 7

Registration deadline for the Appleton district A. S. A. softball tournament has been extended to 8 o'clock Friday night. Ray Risch, tournament manager, announced today.

Nine teams have been registered for the tournament. Risch said, the New London Borden's All-Stars being the latest team to enter.

Other clubs signed for the tournament which opens Wednesday evening, August 7, at Spencer field, are as follows: Marathon Paper Mills, Menasha; Scharf's Tavern, Brillion; Smith Service, Neenah; Wisconsin Veterans Home, Waukegan; Hotel Astor Bombers, Green Bay; South Side Athletic club, Y. M. C. A., and Institute of Paper Chemistry, Appleton.

The tournament manager reported that other teams which are expected to enter are: Kaukauna Club, Kaukauna; Tiklen's Tavern, Green Bay; Seymour Press, Seymour; King's Bar, Shawano; Pond Sport shop, Appleton.

The pairings for the tourney will be made Saturday. The A. S. A. membership certificates must be filled out and reach Madison not later than Monday, August 5, Risch said.

Has everybody in the pro ranks heard that Bill Feldhaus, the Detroit Lion guard, found out those seasoned bulls he bought from a landscape gardener, were really onions dipped in perfume? . . . Michigan opponents are hereby warned to duck when Howard Mahaffey, the Wolverine's blocking back gets going this fall. He's position, they say. . . . Crosley field can't be enlarged any for this year's world series. They used up all the available space last year.

Courtney Is Titlist

Qualifying rounds for the Riverview Country club championship will be played Thursday, August 1, to Sunday, August 11, inclusive, it was announced today.

Dan Courtney is the defending champion. Besides the championship class, there will be Classes A, B, and C. Pairings will be announced Monday, August 12.

The Cleeks added 25 points to their total in the Twilight Golf league at Riverview last night to bring their score up to 182, highest in the league. The Putters are second with 177 and the Niblicks third with 159.

The Midirons were the high team, Dr. Guy Carlson getting 71 points. George Wettengel 6, Wes Cook 4, and William Rounds, 4. High individual scores were Dr. Carlson, Paul Hackbert with 7, Dr. D. M. Gallaher with 6, R. K. Wolter, Alden Johnston, and Henry Rothchild with 6.

Next Tuesday will be the final day in the Twilight league.

Nova and Manager Criticize Jacobs

San Francisco—(U)—Lou Nova, the forgotten man of boxing, and his manager, Ray Carlen, cut loose with a verbal broadside today charging "freeze out" from the championship contenders' circle.

If Mike Jacobs' ears are ringing it is because the California heavyweight and his pilot directed the accusation at the New York promoter.

Nova is in training at Carson City, Nev., so Carlen fired the guns. He said he believed the reason Nova was not being considered in the present buildup to find someone at least fairly suitable as an opponent for champion Joe Louis was because he had consistently refused to become one of Jacobs' satellites by signing a long term contract for his fighter's services.

Chaffin Chapter

By Gordon R. McIntyre

They wrote a new course record and a new record holder wherever they write such things at the Oneida course at Green Bay yesterday. The score was 34-32—66 and the name was Snead, Slammin' Sammy Snead. The occasion was a golf exhibition in which Snead and Ralph Guldahl played Johnny Revolta and Ben Hogan before a crowd of over 800 persons. The Snead-Guldahl duo won, of course, the margin being 2 up.

Slammin' Sammy, a good showman, a wise-cracker and as nonchalant a performer as ever stepped on a course, was pretty much a favorite with the crowd, especially when he reached a point where he could unwind a real wallop. There were several shots that were outstanding because of the distance but one which impressed the most was on No. 6, 380 yards, with Snead approximately 50 yards from the green after his drive. Even Ken Dickinson, one of the many Appleton people at the match, and an old master at the game of golf, stood along the fairway and marveled at the wallop. A downhill roll near the end of the shot helped Snead get some of his distance, but that downhill slope didn't come until about the 300-yard mark.

But while Sammy shot a 66, he might have done better with little or no effort. On the 18th he missed an 18-foot putt by two inches that would have given him a 65, he had a 3-putter on another green and once early in the match he flumped an iron shot.

Snead's card:

Par out	453	444	435—36
Snead out	444	533	434—34

Par in

435	354	435—36—72
Snead in	424	344	434—32—66

Little Ben Hogan, all 130 pounds of him, also was a favorite with the crowd probably because of his size. He was a cool, confident performer and there were few times when his drives failed to equal those of his bigger opponents. On the shorter shots, Ben more than held his own although often times that was his opportunity to make up distance. Hogan shot 35-38—73.

Guldahl, much taller than the usual golfer, and with jet black hair, appeared to be all business and a trifle sullen. He missed several putts by rather close margins and although you expected him to blow up, he didn't. He could even register a smile after some of the shots. His height forces him to lean far over his clubs which sometimes makes him appear ill at ease. Guldahl was clocked in 35-38—73.

Johnny Revolta, the former Oshkosh golfer, hasn't changed much for all of his touring and wandering around the country with the pro caravan. He's still swarthy and pretty much the same boy from across the tracks who came up here to Butte des Morts several years back and broke into print by grabbing off the state open honors. He isn't sure of his putting and changes his stance every so often, but he's able to crack about his shots, and when he canned an exceptionally long putt on the 18th he felt pretty good about the whole thing. Revolta fired 35-37—72.

Bulla Shatters Par in North Hills Warmup

Milwaukee—(U)—Two professional stars, Johnny Bulla and Jimmy Hines, and Jim Ferrier, Australian amateur, shattered par yesterday in practice rounds for the Milwaukee open golf tournament to be held at the North Hills Country club.

Bulla turned in a 67, four under par, while Ferrier and Hines posted 70s.

Several other top flight professionals shot practice rounds in preparation for the tournament which begins Thursday with a pro-amateur test. The meet has drawn a field of more than 200 stars.

Tigers and Indians Tied for A. L. Lead

Cincinnati Winner Over N. Y. Giants, Bucs Bump Dodgers

By the Associated Press

There is just no way to make sense out of the American league pennant scramble.

First the Boston Red Sox looked like they were going places. Then the Cleveland Indians went on the warpath. Intermittently the New York Yankees showed signs of awakening. More recently the Detroit Tigers have been setting the pace.

But today, for at least the fifth time this season, the leaders were in a tie.

The Cleveland Indians, who once gained first place by the simple process of losing four games in a row, moved back into a deadlock for the lead last night by the equally unspectacular feat of winning one game in a row.

Bob Feller kept eight hits scattered efficiently to beat the Boston Red Sox 2-1 in front of 49,238 fans. It was his seventeenth triumph of the year and came at exactly the proper time to capitalize on a three-game losing streak by the Tigers, who were dunked 8-6 by the Yankees.

Ruffing Tames Tigers
Red Ruffing had the Tigers eating out of the palm of his hand most of the game and by the time they got mad enough to bite him, the cause was lost. Ruffing himself contributed a three-run homer to the eight-run total for the world champions amassed before Detroit ever scored. Then when Rudy York hit two homers and Pete Fox one to get rough with Ruffing in the late innings, Johnny Murphy stepped in and tamed them.

This turn in events lifted New York within 6 1/2 games of the lead and one game out of third place.

The National league issue appeared more cut and dried than ever after the Cincinnati Reds smashed a 6-3 decision over the New York Giants and the Brooklyn Dodgers lost an 8-2 nocturnal tussle to the Pittsburgh Pirates. This set Brooklyn back to eight games behind the Reds.

Cincinnati's victory came through a four-run uprising in the eighth inning and was credited to Paul Derringer, his 15th. The tumultuous eighth saw Coach Jimmy Wilson of the Reds expelled for disputing a third strike and Patcher Walter Brown of the Giants charged for arguing a putout at first base.

Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodger debating society also was thumbed out of his game after getting hotter than the thermometer over a third strike called on Fee Wee Reese, although the judge didn't mean much to Brooklyn. The Pirates, who now have won nine of their last 11 games, scored four times in the first inning and with Truett Sewell pitching six-hit ball, the Dodgers never had a chance.

The St. Louis Cardinals pounced on the helpless Boston Bees with a 19-hit attack that was good for a 13-5 victory. Johnny Mize hit his twenty-seventh and twenty-eighth home runs of the year to lead the pack. It was the seventh straight setback for Boston's tail-enders.

Phils Nose Out Cubs
The Phillies managed to nose out the Chicago Cubs 7-5 although out-hit 16-11. The difference was chiefly a five-run second inning staged by the Phils, with Chuck Klein rapping out a triple and Mel Mazzera a double.

A double and two singles netted the Cubs two runs in the first inning. The same combination of blows gave them another in the fifth. With one out in the seventh, Augie Galan smacked one of Higbee's deliveries for two bases. Bill Nicholson tripled and Hank Leibler singled.

The defeat was charged to Bill Lee. The Chicago White Sox extended their surge at the expense of the Philadelphia Athletics with a 3-1 victory on the five-hit hurling of Jack Knott and Pete Appleton. Knott allowed only two hits and no runs for eight frames. Then he weakened in the ninth and Appleton stepped in to save the game. Chicago's tenth triumph in 12 starts.

A pinch double by Wilson Miles and singles by Al Rubelling and Wally Moses sent Knott to the showers. Appleton then made Sam Chapman pop an easy fly and, after issuing a pass to Bob Johnson, got Dick Siebert to hit into a force play. He fanned Frank Hayes with the bases loaded.

Hits by Luke Appling, Mike Tresh, Bob Kennedy and Jimmy Webb figured in the White Sox second inning offensive which netted all of Chicago's runs.

Dutch Leonard shut out the St. Louis Browns 4-0 for Washington in a night game, spacing seven hits and striking out seven. Gee Walker helped out with three timely hits.

Association Has Good Infielders

Chicago—(AP)—The American association is a happy hunting ground these days for major league scouts seeking shortstops and second basemen.

Association clubs peddled three shortstops to the majors last season and may improve on that output this year. Jim Fofah of Minneapolis went to Washington, Louisville's Pee Wee Reese to Brooklyn and Milwaukee's Bob Matlick to the Chicago Cubs.

The stellar ability of many of the circuit's infielders has been overlooked because of the widely-heralded excellence of Kansas City's Phil Rizzuto and Gerald Priddy. Both of these lads are tabbed for the Yanks next season.

Minneapolis has produced another fine shortstop prospect in Huck Geary, in whom the Cubs have shown great interest. Also rated as big league prospects are Claude Corbitt of Milwaukee, Jimmy Hitchcock of Columbus and Woody Williams of Louisville, in addition to Smooth Mark Christman of Toledo, who is battling for another shot at the majors.

The second base group of possibilities includes Barney Walls of Milwaukee; Benny Zientara of Indianapolis and Johnny Lucadello of Toledo.

Bob Feller, Indians—Won his seventeenth game with eight-hit performance against Red Sox.

Dutch Leonard, Senators—Pitched seven-hit ball to beat Browns.

Grand Forks Adds to Northern League Lead

Minneapolis—(AP)—Grand Forks added another full game to its Northern league lead last night as the Chiefs defeated Fargo-Moorhead 2-1, while runnerup Superior dropped a verdict to Wausau by the same score.

Perme, Twins hurler, permitted only four hits, but the Chiefs capitalized their blows, which they combined with five walks.

Orphan gave Superior only three safe blows, all of them going to Blackwell, left fielder. Whiffing 14, Orphan extended his strikeout record for the season to 213.

Eau Claire nosed out Duluth in 12 innings, 3-2, in a game marked by 13 errors, eight of them committed by the Dukes, while Crookston and Winnipeg tangled in a slug-ging duel, the former winning 13-7.

team physician, said today that De Correvont "should be able to report for the opening of football practice if all goes well."

FLUKES CAUSE DUCK MORTALITY

By Jack Connor
Blood flukes cause the death of many wild ducks, instead of starvation, according to a newly announced discovery, made by Dr. E. L. Cheatum, research pathologist for the New York state conservation department.

The parasite, Dr. Cheatum found, is a form never previously reported. It causes severe inflammation in the intestines and liver of the duck, often making the fowl feel too ill to eat, even in the presence of food. The parasite was present in 35 percent of the 45 dead ducks that were examined. The ducks were found at various points in New York state since the first of the year. There is no reason to believe that this condition does not exist in the ducks throughout the rest of the continent, he said.

Attacks All Ducks
Among the ducks in which the flukes were found were the mallard, black duck, green-winged teal, pintail, greater scaup, ringneck, canvasback, and goldeneye. The ducks were believed to have contracted the parasites during the summer

Miss Hattie Albers of Atlanta, Ga., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Albers. She expects to remain here three weeks. Miss Albers was entertained at supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Voigt Saturday evening.

Mrs. Barbara Foch of Visalia, Calif., spent Tuesday with Mrs. A. J. Steffes in this city. Mrs. Foch is visiting her son, Louis and his family in Campbellsport and old friends and neighbors in Chilton and vicinity. She expects to remain in Wisconsin until Sept. 15.

Miss Ruth Tollefson returned home from a three weeks trip to the Atlantic coast, visited at New Haven, and many places in New York. She spent a week in the Adirondack mountains. She returned by way of Canada and Niagara Falls.

in the breeding grounds in the northern states and Canada.
There has not been sufficient time to study the life history of the newly discovered parasite, but Dr. Cheatum said it is likely that this fluke has a life cycle similar to others of its family which use the fresh-water snail as an intermediate host.

Snails Are Carriers
The newly hatched larvae next penetrate the snail and eventually develop into microscopic tadpole-like creatures, which later leave the snail and swim in search of an unsuspecting duck. The small organisms then penetrate the blood vessels, probably through the lining of the duck's mouth, mature into adult flukes and launch the strange cycle again.
Discovery of the fluke, according to Lithgow Osborne, conservation commissioner of New York, marks another important step whereby research is aiding materially in wildlife restoration. The next step along this line will be to discover an effective way to control or eradicate the parasite.

Lili Damita arrives from her Eastern summer stock engagement any day to FBI rumors that Errol Flynn has Renotations.

Hedy Lamarr's statement that she'll be allowed to keep the baby she and Gene Markey intended to adopt before they separated is premature; the home that provided the child may fight the move... LAUGH OF THE WEEK: Youngdoug Fairbanks' highlight on the invasion of France. Early one morning, a Nazi officer thundered on the door of a peasant cottage, entered, and commandeered a three-month-old puppy that was playing in a corner. "Our tank is stuck in the mud," announced the officer, "and the dog must pull us out."

"But he's only a little, weak puppy," protested the peasant, "he can pull nothing." "For us he will pull plenty," boasted the Nazi, "Ve got whips!"

My Neighbor Says—

All bearded irises should be separated every three years. If new plants are to be purchased they should be put into the ground in July or August. They are benefited by the use of bone meal.

Grease marks on pages of books may be removed by sponging them with benzine, placing them between two sheets of blotting paper and pressing with a hot iron.

Apples that have fallen to the ground should be gathered now and preserved for winter use. They make delicious canned applesauce.

Ruff First If Short Of Trump

BY ELY CULBERTSON

When a declarer's trump resources are sketchy and when, in addition, he can see that he must ruff a side suit in order to establish it, good technique becomes indispensable. It is difficult to prescribe a set formula for all hands that fall into this category but, generally speaking, it will be found effective to obtain the necessary ruff before either the dummy or the declarer's hand is reduced materially in trumps. The hand described below illustrates a very important principle.

AK 7 5 4		AK 9 8 2

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
1 spade	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	6 spades	Pass
Pass	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's bidding was good. Although he had four honor tricks, he had neither a good fit with partner's diamond nor a strong rebiddable suit of his own. Therefore, he chose a one-over-one force rather than a jump take-out. Moreover, in order to leave the spade suit open so that his partner, if he held four spades, might show them at an easy level, he bid one heart. South was over-anxious in showing the spades before rebidding his six card diamond suit, but his rebid did have the virtue of supplying information cheaply. The final contract was certainly a logical one.

West opened the fourth best club, and East's king went to declarer's ace. As actually played, the deuce of spades was led to dummy's king, and a spade returned. East showing out. Since East had dropped the ten on the first trump lead, declarer, on winning the second with the ace, now had an established finesse against West's jack, but unfortunately this position did him no good, since he had not yet established the diamonds.

On the third lead of spades West refused to cover. Now, too late, declarer went about establishing his diamond suit. He led to the ace and back to the king, then passed a third round to East (it would have been equally fatal to ruff with dummy's high trump). East returned a club, and after the declarer had ruffed he was void of trumps. West promptly ruffed the next diamond led by the declarer. It made no difference whether or not dummy's trump was used to overruff this, as declarer never could return to his own hand, and dummy still has several losers. The crux in this hand, and in others of a similar nature is to draw precisely one trump with one of dummy's honors, and then to go about the establishment of the diamond suit. (The object of leading one trump is to guard against a defender who may hold only one trump, making that trump on a ruff.)

After this one trump lead, declarer should have led the ace and king of diamonds, then ruffed a third round with one of dummy's low trumps (it would do West no good to force dummy's other honor with his seven spot). After the diamond suit was established, two more rounds of trumps, ending in declarer's hand, would have made the contract iron-clad.

THE HOME GARDENER

by EDWIN H. PERKINS

Most of us look on seed sowing as a spring activity, although there are some seeds which should rightfully be sown during the summer. Among these seeds which should be sown now are the pansies, the double English daisies, and the foxgloves. Sowing should begin now so that the seedlings may have the benefit of a summer sun and cooling nights. This preliminary growth develops husky root systems that will withstand the strain of winter. In nearly all forms of seed sowing, it is recommended that the seeds be placed in soil free from fertilizer, so that the seedlings will not be injured by the quantities of bacteria which accompany fertilization. For our purpose we should sow pansy seeds in rich soil. A generally successful plan starts with a raised bed. The height should be about four inches above

Beauty and You

Women and girls should realize that more harm comes from eating when they are fatigued than from not eating at all. One physician gives this common sense advice to us:

"Never eat if you are in a hurry, if you are nervous, or if you are angry. Do not eat if you are terribly worried or tired. Try to observe common sense rules in your eating habits. You should accept eating as you accept doing your own particular work. It should be done artistically, thoroughly and willingly."

The old-fashioned notion that you must stuff yourself daily with meat and potatoes and pie has done great harm. Now we learn that we can get along nicely without any meat at all, that we should eat much of our vegetables and fruit raw, and that it is actually good for us to take only liquid food for an entire day once in a while.

Drink Your Meals

If you are very fatigued, or feel sort of "dragged out" with the heat, eat lightly. Drink your meals. Vegetable juices, fruit juices, milk, clear vegetable broths. Whenever you feel hungry, drink one of these. In fact, one famous nutritionist suggests that we take an eight-ounce glass of liquid nourishment each hour if we are very hungry. If we are not hungry, then a glass every two hours is sufficient to get along on. It is surprising how well one can rest after a "liquid diet" for a day. We are advised that we would benefit by such a day in every ten.

Even though you have no desire or need to reduce, a liquid day gives your body a rest. Of course the amount of liquid food you take depends entirely upon what you must do during the day.

If your duties are light, you can drink nothing but citrus fruit juice such as lemon juice, orange juice, lime juice, unsweetened pineapple juice and fresh grapefruit juice. If the pangs of hunger get too great, you are allowed a handful of raisins. There are sufficient vitamins in such a program to keep you alert.

Program For Beauty

Here is an odd program which you might follow for beauty: One day every ten live on nothing but fruit juices.

Have meat only one day a week. Do not smoke or drink intoxicating liquors, or coffee.

Drink raw milk, or herb teas.

Eat fruit and vegetable salads at luncheon, and have at least one pint of citrus fruit juice for breakfast.

Calisthenics every morning and night.

Take plenty of fresh air baths, cold showers (if you can).

Eat a normal dinner of vegetables, whole grain muffins, and fruit for dessert. Take any vegetable or fruit soup.

Drink a glass of orange juice before going to bed.

My "Scientific Diet" is available. It lists foods for beauty. If you write for it enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Child Should be Told Self Defense Justified

BY ANGELO PATRI

Dick is three years old and he plays with Mary Louise and Billy who are both past six. The two older ones get on well until Dick comes out. His mother turns him out as early as possible, and leaves him to make his own way with the other children on the block. He has settled down to these two and makes their lives miserable for them. If he wants anything they have, and he always does, he grabs it and pulls it to him. If the other two resist he bites them—not a mere nip but a stout bite with sturdy teeth behind it.

Mary Louise and Billy have been trained not to strike another child, and never, never to bite anybody. This conduct of Dick leaves them powerless. They appeal to their mothers and they say, "Well, it is too bad. Dick ought not to bite you. Can't you get along with him so he doesn't feel like biting you?"

Dick's mother has been told about his biting habits, and his demanding ways. She says, "He is the smallest and he has to defend himself some way. Don't tease him and he won't bite you." So there we are.

Each Helps the Other

Children cannot be kept prisoners in their own yards, and they must play together in order to grow properly, in well-balanced fashion. Each mother owes the other mother's children gratitude for the contribution they make to her child's growth and education. Because of that, if for no other reason, each mother should earnestly try to cooperate with the others so as to get the best out of such associations for the whole group.

It isn't exactly sporting to move into a neighborhood for the express purpose of benefitting from the associations found there and then do nothing to forward what good there is in them. He who takes without giving shall lose what he has. That is the law.

Biter Must Be Punished

Children are not to bite each other in self-defense. It would be much better to train a child to use his hands for self-defense. This little biter boy should not be trained to believe that his teeth are his best defense. He should be taught that if he bites he is likely to be slapped smartly by his victim, and isolated thereafter for the term of his repentance.

I would not teach a child that he should stand there and be bitten as well as suffer the loss of his playthings. I would rather tell the children to resist such behavior, gently but firmly if they can, but with force if gentleness won't do. Dick should learn this lesson right now and the other two should learn their side of it at the same time. Anybody who puts up with abuse is certain to get plenty of it. That may be a sad fact, but it is a fact, and we have no right to train children to acceptance of abuse. They have hands to defend themselves with and we should teach them to use them when necessary.

An adult ought not to slap a child save in emergency. A slap given one child by another is quite another matter.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

DUTIES OF A COMPANION

In answer to a letter asking me what the duties and qualifications of a companion are, I can't answer better than to quote from my own book: "The position of companion, which is always one of social equal-surrounding soil. In the first two inches above the original level it is recommended that the mixture shall consist of one-quarter rotted manure, one-quarter humus and one-half good garden loam, thoroughly mixed. The next two inches should be built up from the same mixture, except that the one-quarter rotted manure should be altered to about one-sixteenth part of manure, the remainder to be made up with sharp sand. Before sowing seed, place a pinch of any damping-off compound (available at all seed stores) in the package and shake thoroughly so that all seeds will have a tiny covering. Sow in the usual manner, either in drills or broadcast; water well, and await results.

Mothers Can Frighten Away Girl's Confidence

BY DOROTHY DIX

One of the chronic grievances of mothers is that their daughters do not confide in them. "Positively," they will say, "we are on more intimate terms with the girls who sell us our stockings than we are with our own Mamies and Sadies and Susies. They never tell us a thing about our hearts for them to shut us out of their lives after all the love we have given them and the sacrifices we have made for them."

"We would like to confide in our mothers, but they won't let us," say the girls. "We know we are young and ignorant and inexperienced, and there are many things that we are uncertain about that we would like to talk over with our mothers if prohibitions on our heads and furnishing them with minute we commence confiding in Mother she feels it her sacred duty to hoist a lot of awful warning signs and get jittery over the dangers in modern life to girls, and naturally we are not going to open up to her when the results are going to be a lecture and a lot of 'don'ts.' That is why we go on the principle that what Mother doesn't know doesn't hurt her. It is a matter of self-preservation."

Dorothy Dix

"Then it is hard to tell Mother things just because the relationship makes a barrier between us. Mother has always put herself up on a pinnacle and she doesn't know how to get down off her pedestal to her children's level."

"We have always looked up to her, so how are we to tell one who was the model of propriety, and who always sat across the room and conversed with her beaux at long distance, and never let a man touch more than the tips of her fingers about parties in parked automobiles and kissing boys good-night as pay for taking us to the movies?"

"Another reason we go clamorous around Mother is because she tries to force our confidence. She is always probing and prying into our affairs. She reads our letters before we are permitted to see them. She listens in on our telephone conversations."

"She puts us through the third degree about everywhere we go, everything we do, everybody we see, and it just isn't human nature not to resent this. And especially do young people who are just beginning to feel that they have a right to some privacy rebel at this vulgar curiosity among mothers."

"We come home, for instance, from some date where we have had a good time, and if Mother would just let us alone we would enjoy telling her all about it, who was there and what we did, but when she begins putting the screws on us trying to make us account for every minute of the time, and makes such comments on everything we tell her, why we just shut up and wild horses couldn't drag another word out of us."

"Another reason why we don't confide our secrets in Mother is because she is often a blab. She tells everything she knows to her friends and if one of us does something

"Still less would we dream of telling Mother that we were beginning to have a flirty feeling when we saw his old lady coming down the street, and that just his mere presence flooded the world with sunshine and made everything suddenly all right. And we couldn't save our lives, ask her if she thought that our symptoms indicated that we had this thing called love."

"But, oh, how we would like to confide in Mother, if only she would let us."

DOROTHY DIX

On the outside, in the left-hand corner, was printed the name and address of a top rank woman's magazine. "Why should they write to me?" Jan asked of nobody in particular, completely mystified.

"I know, they probably want me to buy a subscription."

"For heaven's sake, open it!" Lance exclaimed. "Women have no special prerogative of curiosity."

Norma fetched a nail file from the dresser and gave it to Jan, who held it under the envelope flap. When she unfolded the letter a check fell to the floor. Norma picked it up and emitted a shriek. Jan snatched it. Her eyes felt as if they'd bulge out of her head as she stared and stared.

"One thousand dollars!" she stammered. "But for what?"

"Read the letter," Norma sputtered. "What does it say?"

"It's a check for some sketches I did of Nippy—but how?" Then suddenly she remembered that Derek had taken them with him when he went east. "For luck," he'd written.

"Derek," she choked. "Derek sold them for me, and they want more!" She slid to the floor beside Lance's wheel chair and shook her head until her curls stood on end. "I don't believe it. It isn't so. But it is! I'm arrived! I'm somebody—just think, an editor, a great big important editor, thinks I'm good enough to pay me money and order more!"

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Hanna

YESTERDAY: Jans gets a job in the Mexican quarter of Los Angeles, sketching portraits of tourists. She meets a fellow artist, Angus.

Chapter 30
NEWLYWEDS

Jan found it grand and exciting to meet Angus' friend and join in their art debates. She picked up a lot of useful and practical knowledge, too, from these artists who either supported themselves by their art or starved. They were carelessly friendly to Jan, assuming at once that she was Angus' Lorry's sweetheart, which vexed and embarrassed Jan.

This new existence was for the most part a gay life, carefree, irresponsible, pleasant. Her first sensation of overwhelming release from burden made her a bit light-headed with freedom. Her quick laughter, her freckling, whimsy, enchanted Angus into awkward attempts at lovemaking.

She earned enough money for rent and food, sometimes enough for a new smock. Although she kept in touch with Norma by card and letter, she knew no urge to return to Sea Tide for even a day. She had by now about convinced herself that love was something she had yet, if ever, to experience. Just the fancy love for Derek was just that—fancy. It hadn't meant anything less of all to him. And if it lingered, hurting now, and then, she'd get over it. She had found new friends and her work and she was only twenty.

She fed and thrived on her environment, absorbing it greedily, hungrily, not reaching the point of satiety until summer was nearly over. She had needed this, needed it badly and she might have lingered on it as Angus Lorry hadn't fallen too much in love with her.

"Of course we can't marry," he said matter-of-factly as they went up to their rooms in the old hotel. "Artists should never marry."

"Why not?" asked Jan.

"Why not? Because marriage is stifling to creative natures! Artists must be free souls, must belong to themselves alone, to their art."

"But couldn't they marry and still belong to all that?" she demanded.

"Suicide. Emotional suicide," he declared darkly.

"But surely free love went out with flappers and jazz," she argued.

"Oh, we don't call it that," he said in amused condescension. "Just a sort of mutual understanding."

"I see," she said in a small voice. "I'm very tired, Angus. Good-night."

"You love me, don't you?" he demanded with all the arrogant ego of a young and prideful male.

"I'm afraid I don't." Instead of being crestfallen, he seemed annoyed and angry. "I don't believe you, Jan. You couldn't love me so much if you didn't love me. You're just sentimental and old-fashioned. You haven't even let me kiss you—maybe that's what is wrong?" He reached for her before she could evade him, pulled her against his chest and half-smothered her with kisses.

When she finally struggled away from him she was laughing. "Oh, go to bed!" she scolded, went into her room and locked the door.

"What a Fool I Am!"

Alone in the close heat of the room she wandered slowly to the one window and looked out on city lights. She felt as if she'd been in the grip of a fever which had, abruptly, passed. "What a fool I am," she thought, crying a little, "to coo myself up in this dingy oven of a room, to mix with people I don't want to understand, to sketch until my fingers ache and never take time off to try for anything better." She thought of her big, cool room at home; of the spacious quiet; of the lulling music of the surf; of deep, green water and warm sand; of her boat and her fishing and her friends and her house. And suddenly, terribly, achingly, she thought of Derek and the happy life they'd led at Sea Tide.

Olvera Street has been a heady cocktail inducing temporary anesthesia. "I'm going home," she whispered. "I'm glad I had all this, but now I want to go home!" She crept into bed feeling peace and space slowly encompass her sore spirit. Even now she hated to admit the disillusionment which Angus' words had caused.

On the wavering edge of sleep thinking that tomorrow night she would be in her big soft bed at home, she was startled into wakefulness by the sound of knocking on her door.

"Telephone—telephone," called whoever it was who had answered the phone in the hall.

She padded down the narrow hallway and picked up the dangling telephone receiver.

It was Norma. Could she come home first thing in the morning? Yes, Lance was all right, but things had turned out so they needed her for a consultation.

"I'm coming home to stay," Jan said. "Oh, Norma, I'm so homesick!"

Jan hung up, nagged by curiosity. Norma wouldn't have called it if it was not important. What could it be? She went back to bed, yet not to sleep for what seemed hours.

Early next morning before anyone was awake or stirring, Jan packed her two suitcases, slipped a note of explanation under Angus' door, and went out into quiet streets. She took a taxi to the subway station at Fifth and Hill and connected without delay to a beach trolley.

Norma met her at the door of the dear red house, hugged and kissed her, looking, as Jan exclaimed at once, divinely pretty.

"Now break the news," she ordered, "and let's make coffee while you talk. I'm absolutely ravenous and I hope I never see another tortilla or frijole as long as I live!"

"It's Rose and Johnny," Norma said. "They've gone and Lance thought you ought to decide about it. Rose and rents and so forth. Truthfully, I want you back home and I know he's hoping you'll stay. He's been a perfect darling, though."

"Rose and Johnny?" Jan echoed. "Norma, don't be aggravating, please! Why, where, when and how?"

"They didn't tell me much," she admitted. "After you left Rose ran short of money and Johnny got her that modest job at the Club. They hit it off pretty well at all, along you know."

"I didn't know," Jan interposed, "but continue, dear voice of experience."

"Well, they eloped by plane to Arizona yesterday and were married."

"Married!" Jan sank wearily into a kitchen chair and scooped Nepenthe, howling woe into her lap. "Why, I can believe it, Norma. Rose was so set on marrying a rich husband who could pour gold and jewels and cars into her lap."

"Nevertheless, they are married and to all intents and purposes, delighted to be married," Norma related. "They rented a little cabin near the Club and moved out their belongings last night."

"Lance?" Jan asked suddenly. A soft flush crept over Norma's face. "He didn't seem to mind much."

Nor did he, Jan discovered, when she went up to see him. If anything, he appeared vastly amused.

"Serves her right," he chuckled, looking healthy and happy. "Did you ever see a cocon turn out a lovelier butterfly than my Norma?"

That possessive "my" both startled and delighted Jan. "You tell me about your adventures," he ordered. "You didn't write half enough and what about this artist fellow?"

They were still talking and laughing when Norma came in an hour and a half later. "An important looking letter just came for you, Jan," she said, placing a long envelope in her hand.

On the outside, in the left-hand corner, was printed the name and address of a top rank woman's magazine. "Why should they write to me?" Jan asked of nobody in particular, completely mystified.

"I know, they probably want me to buy a subscription."

"For heaven's sake, open it!" Lance exclaimed. "Women have no special prerogative of curiosity."

Government Helps Salmon

While salmon are in the ocean, they usually do not go more than 40 or 50 miles away from the mouth of the river by which they entered. This is a general rule, but it does not always hold true.

Salmon have been caught from 200 to 500 miles out to sea!

Sooner or later, a salmon goes back to fresh water. Most often it returns to the river in which it was hatched. Reaching fresh water, it starts upstream.

Salmon going upstream.

The fish eats little if anything in the river. Its body contains a store of fat, and this serves to supply food during the weeks or months it is on the way.

A waterfall in the river may be in the way of the salmon, but it has fine leaping power. It can jump six or seven feet high, to get over a waterfall.

Many rivers have cascades, which rise in a river bed, one after another. Reaching a cascade, the salmon may make jump after jump until it reaches the top. Then it goes on with its upstream journey.

When salmon rivers are dammed, the government takes special steps. "Fish ladders," which are stairways of a sort, may be provided, or the salmon may be taken out of the river in nets and then transported by trucks to a point above the dam. It is ever so important to help salmon get past the dam. Otherwise the next year's hatch would be spoiled, and the salmon industry would suffer a blow.

Journeys of great length are made by some salmon. Those which go up the Yukon river often travel a distance of more than 2,000 miles. In the spawning waters, male salmon do a great deal of fighting. They keep up the struggle for hours, and sometimes are killed.

After the eggs are laid at the headwaters of a river, the salmon start back to the ocean. Do they reach salt water safely? We shall take up that question tomorrow.

Grin and Bear It

"Well, I guess it all boils down to this: I'm a Democrat mainly because my husband is a Republican!"

Warren to be Named Comptroller General

Washington—(AP)—Representative Lindsay Warren (D-N. C.) will be appointed comptroller general of the United States the nomination going to the senate tomorrow.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, was asked today by newsmen about reports that Warren would get the post and replied:

"He will. The nomination would have gone up today if the senate had been in session. It will be submitted tomorrow."

Warren, a veteran member of the house and chairman of the accounts committee, will succeed former Senator Fred Brown of New Hampshire, who resigned recently because of poor health and subsequently was appointed a member of the tariff commission.

Like Keeping Track of Social Security Cards

Vienna—(AP)—Take good care of your clothing and soap rationing cards as otherwise you will have to get along without them, says a new order issued by the authorities of Vienna.

Ever increasing reports from citizens claiming to have lost their rationing cards have induced authorities to issue strict orders, effective immediately, that no substitute cards be granted for clothing or soap cards reported lost.

Whereas food rationing cards are always issued for four weeks, clothing and soap cards are valid for a whole year. The loss of these, therefore, is a severe blow as neither textiles nor soap can be bought in Germany without them.

Wheat Prices Fall as Traders Go for Profits

Early Gains Erased By Small Net Losses On Chicago Market

Chicago—(AP)—Profit-taking attracted by the highest wheat prices in about three weeks erased early fractional gains today and the market closed with small net losses. Corn prices fell about a cent due to rain reports in many sections of the belt and forecast of continued unsettled weather.

Private estimates indicating that Kansas' wheat harvest is substantially larger than expected, with one of the state's leading elevator concerns placing the crop at almost 113,000,000 bushels, or slightly larger than last year, attracted much attention.

A Woman's Woman

Mrs. Willkie Is Congenial, But She Won't Talk Politics

BY ADELAIDE KERR
Mrs. Wendell Willkie is a woman's woman.

She likes women and women seem to like her.

And, judging from work women have done already in his behalf, she thinks they could swing Wendell Willkie's election to the presidency.

She said so at her first New York reception after her husband's nomination, but she didn't say so publicly. Mrs. Willkie makes no public statements on political subjects. She said so in quiet agreement to a question, and then turned quickly back to greet the Republican women filing by.

A Good Time
They streamed past at a tea given in a friend's home, when she was the focal point of hundreds of curious eyes. She seemed to be having a good time—and so did the women who came to see her. A quick smile and hand clasp, and then a pause and words spilling out in a friendly stream.

"Hello, my dear. How's John?" "Helen, how nice to see you—and what a pretty frock!"

I felt that, if there had been a little more time, she might have stopped to exchange a recipe.

But she talked no politics. She parried every leading question neatly and retreated with grace, determination and a smile to safer, more inconsequential ground.

Edith Willkie is a little woman, slender as a girl. Her smiling gray-blue eyes are set in a face that is wide at the cheekbones, "slightly" pointed at the chin and framed in short, softly curled, silver-tinted hair.

On the afternoon of the reception, she wore a simple dark blue crepe frock, whose wide rippling white collar was anchored with a flower corsage and topped by a neat little chapeau crowned with white violets. Something

Klub All-Star Squad Blanks Ft. Atkinson

Alger Holds Crack Belmont Taverns to Single Base Hit

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna Klub All Stars scored a shutout over the Belmont Taverns of Ft. Atkinson last night, 3 to 0, while the Holy Cross CYO lost to the same team in a preliminary game, 2 to 0.

Silly Alger held the Ft. Atkinson team to just one hit while his teammates took eight hits off the pitching of Bobby Krueger and Fiedler. Krueger who is the pitching ace of the Belmont Taverns returned to pitch his first game against the Klub last night after being laid up for over a week with a sore arm. He was relieved in the fifth inning by Fiedler, who had done the hurling against the Holy Cross team.

The Klub got their first two runs in the second inning when Steger singled and scored on a double by Dean. Dean crossed the plate as Van Abel knocked out a single. Dean was responsible for the next run when Niesz scored on his single in the sixth, Niesz having doubled to get on base. Only five of the Klub players were left on base.

Two Reach First — The Belmont Taverns failed to score in their game against the All Stars and got their solitary hit in the second inning when Roghitz singled. The only other man to reach first base was Krueger who was walked in the third frame.

The preliminary game between the Belmont Taverns and the Holy Cross CYO was a different story. This time it was the CYO team that was held scoreless while the Taverns scored two runs. Each team got five hits.

The Taverns got their first run in the first inning when Roloff scored on a triple by Beebe, the latter being tossed out at home as he tried to stretch his three-bagger into a home run. The other run came in the last inning when Gsvhwandner doubled and scored on a single by Roloff.

Holy Cross was in a position to score several times but the players (failed to knock out the necessary hits to score their teammates. In the fourth Buchberger and Lambie reached third and second bases respectively with two out, only to have Giordana ground out to the third baseman. In the last time at bat, Ranguette was thrown out at home when he tried to score on a hit by Giordana. Both Giordana and Lambie, who had been walked, led on base as Peranteau fouled out to the catcher.

Roosevelt's Lead in California Is Slight

BY DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J.—The nomination of Wendell Willkie by the Republicans has profoundly altered Democratic party fortunes in California, whose 22 electoral votes make it one of the key states in presidential elections.

Most political observers had all ways had considered California, a strongly New Deal state in recent years, fairly safe for the Democrats. But a statewide survey by the Institute reveals a Democratic defection in the Golden State of phenomenal proportions—so great that it is entirely possible that President Roosevelt will face a hard fight to carry the state at all next November, even though it voted for him two-to-one four years ago.

While the president is leading Wendell Willkie in popular strength throughout the state at present, his majority is 14 points below what it was in 1936, and 9 points below what it was in June, just before Willkie was nominated by the Republicans.

Thirty-seven staff interviewers for the Institute conducted the poll in California, asking a cross-section of voters the question: "If the Presidential election were held today, would you vote for Willkie or for Roosevelt?"

Those expressing a choice voted 54 per cent for Roosevelt, 46 per cent for Willkie. Approximately one voter in seven (14 per cent) said he was undecided at present.

The significance of this vote is apparent when it is compared to previous results in California.

1936 Presidential Election	68	32

Today	54	46

The poll in California reflects opinion only as of today, of course. Whether the Democratic defection there noted has extended through-been nominated by their respective parties.

Besides California, returns have been reported so far for Pennsylvania, showing 52 per cent for Willkie, 48 per cent for Roosevelt.
